

meet its deliverable date unless it reduces the quality of the materials you've ordered. What should you do next?

Your Response:

Consult with your stakeholders to see if a change in quality is acceptable.

Good Choice! Before you make a trade-off that reduces quality, it is crucial to get buy in from stakeholders.

3. You work for a successful regional bank. You have been assigned to develop a new loyalty rewards program and integrate it throughout the bank. You need a reporting tool that will help each department monitor how its part of the product launch affects other departments—and how it is affected by other departments. Which scheduling tool would be the most appropriate?

Your Response:

A PERT chart.

Good Choice! The PERT chart shows all tasks in progress at a given time, with their dependencies, resources, costs, and risks. This tool is useful for assessing the impact of a change in one aspect of the work of a project.

4. You lead a team that is leading a new marketing campaign. After gathering initial feedback from your sales reps, a few of the team members have collected and written down feedback on changes. What is your best course of action to manage this situation?

Your Response:

Clarify team responsibilities and address concerns or fears. Open feedback is good, and feedback is a chance to clarify team goals and responsibilities, or the extent to which they're addressing team members' concerns or fears.

5. When conducting a change to a new product with an ongoing customer project, what has been suggested to manage risks in the
