Developing Casework Skills James A. Pippin, 1980-11 A practical guide to casework in public social service agencies Pippin begins by discussing the different worlds of client and helper outlines the ingredients for a productive relationship and gives a detailed method for a task focused approach Crises long standing conditions unusual client behaviour and the burnout of the helper's own interest are other topics

Soft Systems Analysis and the Management of Libraries, Information Services and Resource Centres Peter G. Underwood, 1996 Soft systems techniques can be used by managers at all levels to analyse the needs of individuals or groups of people working in or affected by what goes on in an organization. The technique has developed as an alternative to more reductionist hard approaches which tend not to take account of the social and political dimensions of issues and have led to the implementation of systems that have failed to meet the needs of users. In this introduction to the soft systems approach Professor Underwood suggests ways in which this type of analysis offers advantages when used in the context of libraries, information services and resource centres. Soft systems take into account the subjective element in problem solving and are of especial value in the new Internet-driven information situation where traditional information boundaries are being challenged. At a time when the information world has been undergoing fundamental technological and social changes, the need to find techniques to promote greater understanding of this change has become an important challenge for information managers. Soft systems analysis offers the practitioner, the consultant and the student an in-depth view of the application of soft systems analysis as a tool for exploring the potential for change in organizations.

How Personal Growth and Task Groups Work Robert K. Conyne, 1989 Focusing on normal rather than clinical populations, this book presents an account of how practitioners can develop effective groups. Two major categories of groups are explored: task groups such as committee groups for solving problems and accomplishing tangible goals, and personal groups such as psychotherapy groups for achieving individual change and developing interpersonal skills. The author utilizes two extensive examples or stories throughout to demonstrate the applicability of his conceptual framework for group facilitation.

The Planning Commissioners Guide David J. Allor, 1984 This step-by-step guidebook gets new commissioners off on the right foot and helps experienced commission members navigate their roles. The authors, all practicing planners, have worked extensively with planning commissions for decades. They have watched commissioners scramble up a steep learning curve, sit in the hot seat of controversy and strive to make sound decisions for the places they call home. In this helpful handbook, the authors share ideas, insights and information to help commissioners succeed. Eight detailed chapters cover everything from the nuts and bolts of development applications to the nuances of legal issues to the part commissioners play in long-range planning. Readers will learn how to prepare for their first commission meeting, review a development plan, invite productive public input and steer clear of ethical dilemmas.

Agency and Company Louis A. Ferman, Roger Manela, David Rogers, 1980-11 An amalgam of concepts from social science literature and ideas suggested by agency personnel and company officials are presented in this Human Service Guide. The authors specify what is considered good practice in developing agency/company relationships and suggest alternative reasons and techniques for developing such relationships Creating Small Scale Social Programs Barbara Schram, 1997-10-14 Built around a single case study Creating New Agency Programs clearly illustrates how to effectively plan implement and evaluate a small scale social program Each step in the planning process is introduced and described in a way that allows the reader to vicariously participate in the evolution of the program Useful charts time lines and resource lists are included and can be easily referenced and utilized This book s emphasis on planning is important not only because it is a much used and generally under taught skill but because successful planning is the process that can turn the dreams of a community into concrete reality This book is geared toward designing programs to meet specific social needs and organizing the relevant and human resources to implement them The programs are specific detail and activity oriented but are designed to support long range goals which may be handed down by a parent organization or the community in general The author s strategy of using a case study serves as a creative learning tool that leads readers through each practical step toward successfully creating their own small scale social program Filling the void of literature on designing programs Creating New Agency Programs is ideal for professionals and students in a variety fields social work human services clinical counseling psychology drugs and alcohol psychology nursing and management who are faced with the task of planning designing and evaluating a program Index of Industrial Relations Literature ,1979

Effective Meetings John E. Tropman, Bronwyn Mills, 1980-11 This book deals with a topic whose importance is evident to anyone familiar with the human service field where innumerable hours are inevitably spent in meetings This book s basic premise is that group decision making is valuable and essential in our modern society because it brings together individuals with a variety of different expertise values and experiences in order to solve complex problems Tropman presents specific procedures to help participants improve decision making by utilizing the contribution of all group members appropriately and he offers some explicit guidelines and techniques for this purpose Social Casework
