Mak,2021-02-28 Why do the Chinese who are mostly lactase non persistent suddenly thirst for milk today Whether it is formula milk fresh cow milk or tea with condensed milk the rocketing milk consumption and production in China are of increasing global food safety health and environmental concerns Milk Craze examines and compares developments in China s dairy industry and dietary dairy consumption cross nationally and globally and more specifically in two localities Shunde and Hong Kong Through an innovative analysis of medical texts and social media as well as careful ethnographic studies Veronica Mak ponders why the surge in demand for Western cow milk coincides with the plunge in sales of indigenous water buffalo milk and cheese She reveals the multiple ways in which global industries and Chinese dairy conglomerates sabotage and destroy local dairy farms She shows that the rise of milk consumption is not just about the globalization of cow milk production and Westernization of the Chinese diet but also due to the crossovers between the traditional Chinese diet and medicine and modern global diets She uses these reference points to explore the multiple meanings of dairy foods in China such as the class and cultural attributes associated with British milk tea and flavored yogurt products water buffalo curds and cheese and the lower class associations of labor in the water buffalo dairying industries and then discusses these developments in China through colonial and modern global perspectives Milk Craze argues powerfully that the Westernization or dramatic change of diet in China too often obscures structural educational occupational and social stresses and constraints while naturalizing the dubious redefinition of health cognitive performance and ideal body shape as individual responsibility and imperative

Moral Foods Angela Ki Che Leung, Melissa L. Caldwell, 2020-02-29 Moral Foods The Construction of Nutrition and Health in Modern Asia investigates how foods came to be established as moral entities how moral food regimes reveal emerging systems of knowledge and enforcement and how these developments have contributed to new Asian nutritional knowledge regimes The collection s focus on cross cultural and transhistorical comparisons across Asia brings into view a broad spectrum of modern Asia that extends from East Asia Southeast Asia to South Asia as well as into global communities of Western knowledge practice and power outside Asia The first section Good Foods focuses on how food norms and rules have been established in modern Asia Ideas about good foods and good bodies shift at different moments in some cases privileging local foods and knowledge systems and in other cases privileging foreign foods and knowledge systems The second section Bad Foods focuses on what makes foods bad and even dangerous Bad foods are not simply unpleasant or undesirable for aesthetic or sensory reasons but they can hinder the stability and development of persons and societies Bad foods are symbolically polluting as in the case of foreign foods that threaten not only traditional foods but also the stability and strength of the nation and its people The third section Moral Foods focuses on how themes of good versus bad are embedded in projects to make modern persons subjects and states with specific attention to the ambiguities and malleability of foods and health The malleability of moral foods provides unique opportunities for understanding Asian societies dynamic position within larger global flows connections and disconnections Collectively the chapters raise intriguing questions about how foods and the bodies that consume them have been valued politically economically culturally and morally and about how those values originated and evolved Consumers in modern Asia are not simply eating to satisfy personal desires or physiological needs but they are also conscripted into national and global statemaking projects through acts of ingestion Eating then has become about fortifying both the person and the nation
