Cassia Spohn, Pauline Brennan, 2019-06-14 Sentencing Policies and Practices in the 21st Century focuses on the evolution and consequences of sentencing policies and practices with sentencing broadly defined to include plea bargaining, judicial and juror decision making and alternatives to incarceration including participation in problem solving courts. This collection of essays and reports of original research explores how sentencing policies and practices both in the United States and internationally have evolved. It explores important issues raised by guideline and non guideline sentencing and provides an overview of recent research on plea bargaining in the United States, Australia and the United Kingdom. Other topics include the role of criminal history in sentencing, the past and future of capital punishment, strategies for reducing mass incarceration, problem solving courts and restorative justice practices. Each chapter summarizes what is known, identifies the gaps in the research and discusses the theoretical, empirical and policy implications of the research findings. The volume is grounded in current knowledge about the specific topics but also presents new material that reflects the thinking of the leading minds in the field and that outlines a research agenda for the future. This is Volume 4 of the American Society of Criminology's Division on Corrections and Sentencing handbook series. Previous volumes focused on risk assessment, disparities in punishment and the consequences of punishment decisions. The handbooks provide a comprehensive overview of these topics for scholars, students, practitioners and policymakers.

Delinquent Daughters Mary E. Odem, 2000-11-09 Delinquent Daughters explores the gender, class and racial tensions that fueled campaigns to control female sexuality in late nineteenth and early twentieth century America. Mary Odem looks at these moral reform movements from a national perspective but she also undertakes a detailed analysis of court records to explore the local enforcement of regulatory legislation in Alameda and Los Angeles Counties in California. From these legal proceedings emerge overlapping and often contradictory views of middle class female reformers, court and law enforcement officials, working class teenage girls and working class parents. Odem traces two distinct stages of moral reform. The first began in 1885 with the movement to raise the age of consent in statutory rape laws as a means of protecting young women from predatory men. By the turn of the century however reformers had come to view sexually active women not as victims but as delinquents and they called for special police, juvenile courts and reformatories to control wayward girls. Rejecting a simple hierarchical model of class control, Odem reveals a complex network of struggles and negotiations among reformers, officials, teenage girls and their families. She also addresses the paradoxical consequences of reform by demonstrating that the protective measures advocated by middle class women often resulted in coercive and discriminatory policies toward working class girls.
