Transparency in Assessment – Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson, Frans Prins, 2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research

Education in a Federal UK John Furlong, Ingrid Lunt, 2019-10-23 Britain's two recent referenda on Brexit 2016 and on

Scottish independence 2014 have raised in the public mind fundamental questions about the future of the UK It seems that for the first time the public the media and the political elite have woken up to the fact that in different parts of the UK there are different histories different aspirations and different imagined futures in relation to a whole range of vitally important political issues But what the public debate often fails to recognise is that in many areas of public life perhaps especially education the UK is already a federal state and in key respects has been so for many years The aim of this volume is therefore to take stock to try and capture what the current state of educational policy and practice is across the whole of the UK This has been achieved by commissioning two different papers from each of the four countries Wales Scotland Northern Ireland and England The first is an overview exploring the distinctive history principles and current policies of each country The second paper has been specifically chosen as a case study of a key policy that highlights the distinctiveness of each country the Foundation Phase for Wales assessment policy in Scotland shared education initiatives in Northern Ireland and higher education policy in England Taken together these eight papers give an important insight into the complexities of educational policy and practice across the whole of the UK today This volume was originally published as a special issue of Oxford Review of Education
