The Invention of Creativity Andreas Reckwitz, 2018-01-25 Contemporary society has seen an unprecedented rise in both the demand and the desire to be creative to bring something new into the world. Once the preserve of artistic subcultures, creativity has now become a universal model for culture and an imperative in many parts of society. In this new book, cultural sociologist Andreas Reckwitz investigates how the ideal of creativity has grown into a major social force from the art of the avant garde and postmodernism to the creative industries and the innovation economy, the psychology of creativity and self growth, the media representation of creative stars and the urban design of creative cities. Where creativity is often assumed to be a force for good, Reckwitz looks critically at how this imperative has developed from the 1970s to the present day. Though we may well perceive creativity as the realization of some natural and innate potential within us, it has rather to be understood within the structures of a very specific culture of the new in late modern society. The Invention of Creativity is a bold and refreshing counter to conventional wisdom that shows how our age is defined by radical and restrictive processes of social aestheticization. It will be of great interest to those working in a variety of disciplines from cultural and social theory to art history and aesthetics.

Design Management Sotiris Lalaounis, 2017-09-22 Placed at the nexus between marketing and organisational studies, this book breaks a new ground on the intersection of these two disciplines with design management. With the latest marketing thinking assigning greater emphasis on organisations co-creating value with consumers and other stakeholders by placing them at the heart of the product service development process, it has never been more important to integrate marketing and organisational perspectives into design management. This text explores the importance of managing design strategies, design processes and design implementation in a way that it puts the human and the society at the centre, contributing to organisational success, customer gratification and social welfare. This book responds to the lack of Asian representation in creative cities literature. It aims to use the creative cities paradigm as part of a wider process involving first a rapid de-industrialisation in Asia that has left a void for new development models resulting in a popular uptake of cultural economies in Asian cities and second the congruence and conflicts of traditional and modern cultural values leading to a necessary re-interpretation and re-imagination of cities as places for cultural production and cultural consumption. Focusing on the Asian century it seeks to recognise and highlight the rapid rise of these cities and how they have stepped up to the challenge of transforming and regenerating themselves. The book aims to re-define what it means to be an Asian creative city and generate more dialogue and new debate around different urban issues. Global
