Through various explorations of challenges, paradigms and innovations of urban sustainability, this book highlights how planning policy and design are forming and reforming in the context of China. These are offered through a set of guidelines and pathways for urban sustainability at the scale of neighborhoods, communities or districts in a wider context of urban environments as well as strategies for planners, developers, policy makers and educators in the field of the built environment. Global Green Infrastructure Ian Mell, 2016-03-10. Over the last decade, research exploring green infrastructure planning has burgeoned. Transferable green infrastructure messages between locations though are less well established and there remains a visible gap between the conceptual understanding of green infrastructure and its application in practice. Drawing together evaluations of green infrastructure policy making and practice from across the world, Global Green Infrastructure illustrates where successful practices can be identified. Examples from major green infrastructure development areas in the UK, Europe and the USA highlight the variety of investment options that can deliver socio-economic benefits. There is also a growing awareness of the added value of landscape planning in the rapidly developing cities of India and China. Reflecting on ten international case studies, Global Green Infrastructure highlights the ways that ecology and engineered solutions can deliver successful urban development. Based on in situ research with the growing community of green infrastructure researchers and practitioners, Global Green Infrastructure looks at the contradictions, consensus and expanding evidence base of successful investments. This book also presents an in-depth commentary on the contemporary approaches to investment in urban greening and green infrastructure and draws on the lessons we have learnt from a decade of experimentation, delivery and reflection.

Landscape Urbanism is a response to the limited perception or depiction of the current project and site context by both Urban Planners and Architects and Landscape Architects. It is also a concept that has been strategically introduced by these design and planning oriented professions and jobs especially in terms of Urban Design as a way to differentiate the context and is used more in a Western oriented way and has been put forward as a response to the increasingly undefined role that Landscape Architects find themselves in. Landscape Urbanism describes the ability to produce urban effects that have traditionally been achieved through the construction of buildings on built up areas simply through the organization of horizontal surfaces. Although first coined in the mid 1990s the term Landscape Urbanism has adopted many different uses but is most often associated with Urban Design and as a Postmodernist or even New Modernist response to the spatial scale failures of the New Urbanism the departure from comprehensive visions and demands for Modern architecture and Urban Planning.

Australian Environmental Planning Jason Byrne, Neil Sipe, Jago Dodson, 2014-04-16. Winner of the Planning Institute of Australia's 2015 Cutting Edge Research and Teaching Award. Australians from all walks of life have begun to realise the nation's cities cannot sustain profligate growth indefinitely. Dwindling water supplies failing food bowls increased energy costs more severe bushfires severe storms flooding coastal erosion rising transport expenses housing shortages and environmental pollution are now daily news headlines. Australia's cities may have reached their ecological limits a new model for planning the places we live is needed. Understanding the natural cycles of the city is just as important to planning our cities as knowledge of local ordinances indeed much more so. A profound knowledge of environmental processes is critical for successful planning in today's world. Environmental planners take as their guiding principle the concept of designing with nature approaching cities as living organisms that consume water energy and raw materials and produce waste. This metabolic view of cities means we can find new solutions to old problems and steer our cities towards a more sustainable form of planning. Written specifically for students and professionals working in city planning in Australia this ground breaking new book enables Australian planners architects and developers to get a better understanding of the fundamental principles of environmental planning for cities showing how land water air energy wildlife and people shape our built environments and how in turn environmental processes must be better understood if we are to make informed decisions about developing cities that are more sustainable The book s coverage is comprehensive from an overview of the concepts and theories of environmental planning through analysis of governance systems and urban environmental processes to agendas and policies for the future all the key topics are covered in depth with recommendations for supporting reading and an unrivalled selection of additional materials Ideal for students essential for professionals

Australian Environmental Planning is vital reading for more sustainable cities in a more sustainable world Rethinking Suburbs Khaled Alawadi,2024-04-11 Rethinking suburbs provides answers to how can we design and plan neighborhoods in which non motorized mobility is a viable and efficient alternative and how the street systems and alleys of neighborhoods can be designed and retrofitted to make their urban fabrics more efficient and integrated Streets play significant roles in meeting multiple sustainability objectives This research addresses Abu Dhabi s and Dubai s street connectivity at the neighborhood local and city global scales It focuses on two parameters of street network analysis efficiency and centrality Efficiency is evaluated in terms of directness noting that network designs that provide short and direct access between origins and destinations are more efficient Centrality is evaluated using graph theory metrics that enable the identification of high and low accessibility locations within networks The conventional suburban model of low density automobile centric development with fragmented streets cannot foster high levels of accessibility within neighborhoods This study offers an alternative evidence based suburban design model for future cities The Age of Sustainability Mark Swilling,2019-11-06 With transitions to more sustainable ways of living already underway this book examines how we understand the underlying dynamics of the transitions that are unfolding Without this understanding we enter the future in a state of informed bewilderment Every day we are bombarded by reports about ecosystem breakdown social conflict economic stagnation and a crisis of identity There is mounting evidence that deeper transitions are underway that suggest we may be entering another period of great transformation equal in significance to the agricultural revolution some 13 000 years ago or the Industrial Revolution 250 years ago This book helps readers make sense of our global crisis and the dynamics of transition that could result in a shift from the industrial epoch that we live in now to a more sustainable and equitable age The global renewable energy transition that is already underway holds the key to the wider just transition However the evolutionary potential of the present also manifests in the mushrooming of ecocultures new urban visions sustainability oriented developmental states and new ways of learning and researching Shedding light on the highly complex challenge of a sustainable and just transition this book is essential reading for anyone concerned with establishing a more sustainable and equitable world Ultimately this is a book about hope but without easy answers Historical Dictionary of Australia Norman Abjorensen,James C.
