Cultural Heritage in a Changing World Karol Jan Borowiecki, Neil Forbes, Antonella Fresa, 2016-05-02 The central purpose of this collection of essays is to make a creative addition to the debates surrounding the cultural heritage domain In the 21st century the world faces epochal changes which affect every part of society including the arenas in which cultural heritage is made held collected curated exhibited or simply exists The book is about these changes about the decentring of culture and cultural heritage away from institutional structures towards the individual about the questions which the advent of digital technologies is demanding that we ask and answer in relation to how we understand collect and make available Europe s cultural heritage Cultural heritage has enormous potential in terms of its contribution to improving the quality of life for people understanding the past assisting territorial cohesion driving economic growth opening up employment opportunities and supporting wider developments such as improvements in education and in artistic careers Given that spectrum of possible benefits to society the range of studies that follow here are intended to be a resource and stimulus to help inform not just professionals in the sector but all those with an interest in cultural heritage

Cultural Heritage and Territorial Identity Elisa Panzera, 2022-02-10 This book explores and substantiates the role of cultural heritage as an engine for local socio economic development Starting from the assumption that cultural heritage represents a valuable unique and irreplaceable resource for European regions it identifies and quantitatively analyzes tourism and territorial identity as two different channels through which cultural heritage can influence local socio economic development The book highlights the fact that cultural heritage not only has a positive influence on local cultures societies and environments but also plays a role in the process of local economic growth Providing comprehensive empirical evidence that explains and discusses whether and how the endowment of cultural heritage benefits local socio economic growth it will appeal to scholars and students of cultural economics and regional science and anyone interested in sustainable socio economic development

International Heritage Law for Communities Lucas Lixinski, 2019-05-30 This book critically engages the shortcomings of the field of international heritage law seen through the lenses of the five major UNESCO treaties for the safeguarding of different types of heritage It argues that these five treaties have effectively prevented local communities who bear the brunt of the costs associated with international heritage protection from having a say in how their heritage is managed The exclusion of local communities often alienates them not only from international decision making processes but also from their cultural heritage itself ultimately meaning that systems put in place for the protection of cultural heritage contribute to its disappearance in the long term International Heritage Law for Communities adds to existing literature by looking at these UNESCO treaties not as isolated regimes but rather as belonging to a discursive continuum on cultural heritage. In doing so the book focuses on themes that cut across the relevant UNESCO regimes like the use of expert rule in international heritage law economics the relationship between heritage and the environment among others rather than the regimes themselves. It uses this mechanism to highlight the blind spots and unintended consequences of UNESCO treaties and how choices made in their drafting have continuing and potentially negative impacts on how we think about and safeguard heritage. Reconstruction and Restoration of Architectural Heritage 2021 Sergey Sementsov, Alexander Leontyev, Huerta Santiago, 2021-07-27

Communities and Cultural Heritage Valerie Higgins, Diane Douglas, 2020-11-29

Communities and Cultural Heritage explores the relationship between communities their cultural heritage and the global forces that control most of the world's wealth and resources in today's world. Bringing together scholars and heritage practitioners from nine countries this book contributes to the ongoing dialogue on community heritage by analysing impediments to full community participation. The undermining of local communities comes at a high price. As the chapters in this book demonstrate the knowledge embedded within traditional and Indigenous heritage creates communities that are more resilient to environmental and social stressors and more responsive to contemporary challenges such as climate change environmental degradation post disaster recovery and relocation. Cultural heritage practices often fail to capitalise upon local knowledge and traditional skills and undervalue the potential contribution of local communities in finding creative and resourceful solutions to the issues they are confronting. Arguing that the creation of successful community heritage project requires ongoing reflection on the aims methods financing and acceptable outcomes of projects the volume also demonstrates that the decolonization of Western focussed heritage practices is an ongoing process by which subaltern groups are brought forward and given a space in the heritage narrative. Reflecting on trends that impact communities and heritage sites across different geographical regions Communities and Cultural Heritage will be of interest to academics students and practitioners of cultural heritage archaeology and anthropology around the world.
