

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

The people of Kazmar Village cannot grow enough food to feed everyone there. Though they have plenty of seed, fertilizer, and workers, they live right next to the mountains so there is not enough flat, farmable land to grow their crops.

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

The people of Ritmar live in a region that is cold for much of the year and does not get much rain, though the area does have fertile soil. For generations they have tried to grow crops such as rice, but their yields have been very low. Now they are having a hard time feeding their population.

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

The Zenon civilization prospered on the banks of the Righteous River, enjoying the benefits of fertile soil and a plentiful water supply. Now they have had to move 10 miles away to escape a war going on in a neighboring village. Their new location however, does not have enough water.

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

Due to religious persecution, the people of Winwood were forced to flee their homes and move west to a flood plain. Every spring the rains come and water covers half of their living area. The people can grow food on land that doesn't flood, but then there is nowhere to build their homes.

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

CIVILIZATION	PROBLEM	YOUR SOLUTION
Kazmar terracing	Kazmar does not have enough flat land to grow enough crops needed to support their village.	- trade - people move - build terraces - find "garden" area away from village
Ritmar crop differentiation	no rain + too cold for fertile soil	- grow different crops for region
Zenon irrigation	Not enough water due to having to move	- aqueducts - cart water - jobs to transport water - rainwater storage tank
Winwood stilts	Flooding every Spring	- find more land - section for houses and section for crops - raise houses up on stilts - build a dam
