

Using Primavera and SureTrak

---

Preparation

Primavera and SureTrak use Btrieve databases to store your project information. Mapped into the operating system, each project generates a set of 19 datafiles. To access this information, Project Gateway makes use of a Windows mechanism called ODBC (open database connectivity). This is the same mechanism used by Primavera's ReportSmith subsystem to access the project information.

Unfortunately the ODBC mechanism is difficult to set up correctly and first time users often encounter errors when importing projects for the first time. The following procedure should be followed carefully to correctly set up the system.

Configuring P3 & ODBC for Project Gateway

These instructions assume that you are familiar with the operating system and can do functions such as Find a file by searching a drive and modifying INI files. If not, please get a system administrator to assist you.

Preparing the ODBC System

1. Find the Files named ODBC*.DLL.

2. In the list of files located, you will see two critical files that are necessary for operation. ODBC.DLL and ODBCBCURS.DLL.

Put the cursor on the file name ODBC.DLL. Press the Right mouse button (Windows 95,98 & NT) and select the command "Properties." A dialog box is displayed. Select the "Version" tab. At the bottom will be displayed a list including the words "Cursor Level." Click on the "Cursor Level" item. At the right will be displayed a letter. This letter is usually g or h. It may be blank. Write down this letter. Now repeat the procedure on ODBCBCURS.DLL. If you have difficulty importing Primavera projects, the most likely source of problems is the system DLL's named ODBC.DLL and ODBCBCURS.DLL. Although these are separate files, they operate as pair. If the versions of these system DLL's are incompatible, Project Gateway import will fail even though all the P3 data is correctly stored, and all the Project Gateway software is installed and configured correctly.
