The New Boundaries between Bodies and Technologies Ivan Varga, 2009-03-26 The new boundaries between bodies and technologies constitute one of the most important developments in the last fifty years Through technologies we not only change the relations between a natural given the body and a human made artefact the technology but also change the ways we experience the world How close are we to a world in which the abilities of machines are indistinguishable from those of the species that invented them Our encounters with the new technologies change the cognitive processes and influences the modes of processing information Moreover it raises the question of the nature of human beings Traversing body as emotive being in the world and body as location culturally and socially constructed there is a third dimension the dimension of technological Are we able to use these new dimension as a creative interface between the emotional brain the acting body and ICTS In answering these questions the book explores the action of bodies in technology that is how the sense of our bodies and of our orientation in the world are affected by information and communication technologies It contributes therefore to the world wide discussion and debates on the impact of technology especially information technology on the lives of human beings in the age of globalization in particular to the present thinking of the relationship between technology and embodiment Quarterly Bulletin California State Library, 1899

The Politics of Haunting and Memory in International Relations Jessica Auchter, 2014-03-21 International Relations has traditionally focused on conflict and war but the effects of violence including dead bodies and memorialization practices have largely been considered beyond the purview of the field Drawing on Jacques Derrida's notion of hauntology to consider the politics of life and death Auchter traces the story of how life and death and a clear division between the two is summoned in the project of statecraft She argues that by letting ourselves be haunted or looking for ghosts it is possible to trace how statecraft relies on the construction of such a dichotomy Three empirical cases offer fertile ground for complicating the picture often painted of memorialization Rwandan genocide memorials the underexplored case of undocumented immigrants who die crossing the US Mexico border and the body ruins nexus in 9 11 memorialization Focusing on the role of dead bodies and the construction of particular spaces as the appropriate sites for memory to be situated it offers an alternative take on the new materialisms movement in international relations by asking after the questions that arise from an ethnographic approach to the subject viewing things from the perspective of dead bodies who occupy the shadowy world of post conflict international politics This work will be of great interest to students and scholars of critical international relations security studies statecraft and memory studies Writing Migration through the Body Emma Bond, 2018-09-05 Writing Migration through the Body builds a study of the body as a mutable site for negotiating and articulating the transnational experience of mobility At its core stands a selection of recent migration stories in Italian which are brought into dialogue with related material from cultural studies and the visual arts Occupying no single disciplinary space and drawing upon an elaborate theoretical framework ranging from phenomenology to anthropology human geography and memory studies this volume explores the ways in which the skin itself operates as a border and brings to the surface the processes by which a sense of place and self are described and communicated through the migrant body Through investigating key concepts and practices of transnational embodied experience the book develops the interpretative principle that the individual bodies which move in contemporary migration flows are the primary agents through which the transcultural passages of images emotions ideas memories and also histories
