Business of Water Steve Maxwell,2008 State of the World 2004 Worldwatch Institute,2014-04-08 State of the World 2004 takes a fresh look at the trends that have put the global economy on a collision course with the Earth's ecosystems. This year's edition has a special focus on the theme of consumption. It questions whether a less consumptive society is possible and concludes that it is essential. The book explores overconsumption as a by-product of affluence and underconsumption linked to poverty and provides behind-the-scenes exposes of the devastating environmental impacts of some of our most popular products from plastic bags to paper to mobile phones. Published annually in 28 languages, each edition draws on the breadth of expertise of Worldwatch's award-winning team of writers and researchers. State of the World is relied upon by national governments, UN agencies, development workers, and law makers for its authoritative and up-to-the-minute analysis and information. It is essential for anyone concerned with building a positive global future. Farming and the Fate of Wild Nature Daniel Imhoff, Jo Ann Baumgartner, 2012-07-16

Farming and the Fate of Wild Nature addresses an urgent and complex issue facing communities and cultures throughout the world: the need for heightened land stewardship and conservation in an era of diminishing natural resources. Agricultural lands in rural areas are being purchased for development. Water scarcities are pitting urban and development expansion against agriculture and conservation needs. The farming population is ageing and retiring while those who remain struggle against low commodity prices, international competition, rising production costs, and the threat of disappearing subsidies. We are living amidst a major extinction crisis, much of it driven by agriculture as well as an increasing shift toward a global urban populace. The modern diet, driven by a grain-fed livestock industry, is no longer connected with the ecosystems that support it. In international circles, experts are arguing that further intensification of agriculture through industrialization and genetic modification will be necessary to both feed an exploding human population and to save what is left of wild biodiversity. This book takes up where its predecessor, the award-winning Farming with the Wild, left off. Featuring a wide range of in-depth essays, articles, and other materials by such authors as Aldo Leopold, Wendell Berry, Michael Pollan, Fred Kirschenmann, and Daniel Imhoff, this book persuasively demonstrates that farm and ranch operations which coexist with wild nature are necessary to sustain biodiversity and beauty on the landscape. In fact, as this invaluable educational resource demonstrates, they are essential in the challenge of building sane, healthy, and hopeful human societies. Drought and Water Crises Donald Wilhite, Roger S. Pulwarty, 2017-09-25

Over the past decade, there have been extraordinary advances towards drought risk reduction with the development of new water conserving technologies and new tools for planning vulnerability and impact assessment, mitigation, and policy. Drought and Water Crises: Integrating Science, Management, and Policy, Second Edition, comprehensively captures this evolving progress as it discusses drought management in the light of present risks, global climate change, and public policy actions. This new edition emphasizes the paradigm shift from managing disasters to managing risk, reflecting the global emphasis that has evolved in recent years: a new focus that shines light on preparedness strategies and the tools and methods that are essential in drought risk reduction. The book provides additional relevant case studies that integrate this new approach and discusses examples applied in both developed and developing countries

Demand in the Desert Asian Development Bank, 2014-08-01 Mongolia's mining based economic development and the sustainability of its urban economies depend on both water and energy The examination of the water energy nexus in two river basins in Mongolia shows that water availability is the binding constraint as energy facilities mining operations agriculture and urban water users compete for scarce water resources Development of new technologies for efficient water and energy use introduction of renewable energy options and water demand management through economic instruments are recommended However achieving greater water security requires integration of water resource considerations into energy and mining development decision making while strengthening the capacity of newly formed river basin organizations
