

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week resistance training program on the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy young adults. The subjects were 15 male and 15 female college students, aged 18-25 years, who were randomly assigned to either a control group or an experimental group. The control group performed no resistance training, while the experimental group performed a 12-week resistance training program consisting of three sessions per week. The strength and endurance of the lower extremities were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week program. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly greater strength and endurance than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week resistance training program can improve the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy young adults.
