Harnessing The Eastern Himalayan Rivers Regional Cooperation In South Asia:

Harnessing the Eastern Himalayan Rivers B. G. Verghese, Ramaswamy R. Iyer, 1993      Conflict and Cooperation on South Asia's International Rivers Salman M. A. Salman, Kishor Uprety, 2002 Conflict and Cooperation on South Asia's International Rivers traces the development of international water law This book focuses on the hydro politics of four countries in the South Asia region Bangladesh India Nepal and Pakistan It analyzes the problems that these countries have encountered as riparians of international rivers and how they have addressed these problems In particular this study reviews the treaty regimes governing the Indus River basin the Ganges River basin and the Kosi Gandaki and Mahakali river basins Each of these regimes is described in depth with special attention devoted to the main problems each of these treaties sought to address The authors also review the treaty experience and offer observations on bilateralism and multilateralism

Shared Watercourses and Water Security in South Asia Salman M.A. Salman, Kishor Uprety, 2018-08-13 Shared water resources in South Asia face various challenges including scarcity population growth and climate change impacts on all the riparians Consequently national calls for water security have become louder As a result collaboration among the nations of South Asia for ensuring equitable sharing of such water resources has not been optimal While most countries do not have reliable systems for data generation those possessing some hydrological data consider them state secrets restricting their exchange Even when treaty obligations exist data sharing practices are ad hoc and the range of information shared is limited Thus negotiating new transboundary water treaties amongst South Asia's riparian countries has become a daunting task and enforcing existing ones remains a real challenge      International Relations Theory and South Asia (OIP) E.

Sridharan, 2014-11-13 Drawing upon international relations theory this volume conceptualizes possible solutions to the various conflicts in South Asia It analyses the bilateral conflicts between India and Pakistan and other multilateral problems specific to this region Bringing together scholarship from several South Asian countries it offers a well rounded formulation of conflict resolution and cooperation building The volume employs a strong theoretical rubric empirical research and exhaustive fieldwork Its centralizing approach to sustain the diversity of perspectives and arguments makes it an indispensable contribution to strategic studies      Climate Change and Water Resources in South Asia M. Monirul

Qader Mirza, Q.K Ahmad, 2005-06-30 This book addresses the most pressing water resource issues in South Asia particularly in relation to climate change and variability This is a region characterised by abundant water during the monsoon when devastating floods occur and by scarcity of water and droughts during the dry period These extreme events often cause substantial damage to      India Bangladesh Domestic Politics Punam Pandey, 2016-11-26 This book deals with how the governments of India and Bangladesh manage the Ganges River On the basis of the Ganges issue it explains India's involvement in the domestic politics of Bangladesh and how this involvement in turn shapes Ganges river politics The book further analyses the constant friction between Indian preferences for bilateral negotiation in comparison to Bangladesh's demand for multilateral cooperation on the Ganges This also highlights the role of civil society tracing how organisations have engaged in and explored potential compromises acceptable to both countries As the term of the treaty comes to an end in 2026 the present work underlines its limitations as the impacts of climate change will involve far more than distress on water In closing it discusses a range of other challenges including the erosion of the Indian central government's monopoly in foreign policy especially in relation to its neighbours Through extensive fieldwork in India and Bangladesh together with interviews with politicians diplomats and all those closely associated with the Ganges deliberations the book reveals subtle aspects of the negotiations What emerges as a distinctive feature of Indo Bangladesh interactions on the Ganges is the fact that successful outcomes depend on the extent to which the ruling political powers in both countries accommodate one other's domestic political dynamics This insight enriches scholarship on the Ganges River addressing an aspect largely overlooked in the literature Offering an up to the minute analysis the book examines the implementation of the Ganges Treaty through 2015 making it of interest to researchers focusing on South Asia and international relations scholars on and practitioners of Indian foreign policy journalists water experts civil society groups and university students

World Scientific Handbook Of Transboundary Water Management: Science, Economics, Policy And Politics (In 4 Volumes), 2025-01-10 The impacts of population growth climate change and water scarcity and variability on a country's economy or society in addition to the sheer need to harness international rivers for domestic and regional purposes have made the management of transboundary freshwater a subject of great import Over the past several decades research in various disciplines utilizing a variety of methodologies has explored these issues focusing on freshwater's strategic importance as well as conflict cooperation and negotiation over shared water bodies rivers lakes aquifers This multi volume set seeks to contribute to this still burgeoning body of literature by focusing on several key themes that can help explain and recognize successes and failures in transboundary freshwater management In particular the set seeks to bring together original scholarship focusing on international law technology institutions formal and informal and the interplay of domestic and international affairs Each edited volume in the set aims to build on extant research while also fostering new paths of inquiry Overall the set seeks to become a guide for both academics and practitioners hoping to better understand the joint management of this precious natural resource from socio political legal economic and technological perspectives Volume 1 explores international law for shared freshwater resources both surface and subsurface waters from a multidisciplinary perspective It explains the role of international water law IWL and or specific norms within particular contexts case studies and critically examines that role and its relative success or failure in achieving the intended objectives Volume 2 explores the roles of and limitations of technologies and their applications in the management of transboundary water and wastewater It presents case studies and legal and political analyses that focus on the potential or actual roles and implications of the technologies in transboundary policy and management rather than detailed explications of the technologies themselves Volume 3 contributes to the growing literature seeking to understand how when and if institutions broadly defined impact states abilities to address their joint water disputes The volume presents a combination of single comparative and empirical analyses of cases across the world about the role of institutions in facilitating collaboration over transboundary water resources and mitigating conflict Volume 4 seeks to make sense of the interplay of domestic transnational and international dynamics in explaining conflict and cooperation over water through single or comparative case studies as well as analyses of on the ground transboundary water management experiences arising from these complex political dimensions

Managing Water Conflict Ashok Swain, 2004-06-01 Countries are meeting increasing water demand by building reservoirs and by diverting water from one area to another When the water belongs to an international river system these measures lead to riparian conflicts However water scarcity not only brings conflict to these regions but also plays its part in building cooperation In several international river basins in Asia Africa and the Middle East competing and disputing riparian countries are now moving towards a co operative sharing arrangement The signs of agreements on water sharing may be easy but the real problem is how to keep these arrangements on track Such agreements can positively contribute to peace and cooperation by addressing future needs making sustainable decisions and being progressive in their management Managing Water Conflict looks at these current stresses and likely future scenarios for this vitally important subject

The Nepal-India Water Relationship: Challenges Dwarika N. Dhungel, Santa B. Pun, 2009-01-18 Since its establishment as a policy research institute in 1990 the Institute for In grated Development Studies IIDS has been engaged in promoting public awa ness and understanding of issues of national importance by undertaking studies and research on contemporary themes It has been disseminating findings of its studies to policymakers in the public and private sectors and ultimately to the public at large Water resources is one of the areas of strong public interest in Nepal. It is considered a potent engine of economic growth. Its optimal use is dependent on, among other things, the cooperation among the riparian countries, especially India and Bangladesh. Water resources development is one of the subjects in which the Institute has been engaged since its beginning by undertaking studies through national professionals and joint studies on the water resources of the Ganges, Brahmaputra, and Meghna river basins with policy research institutes from India and Bangladesh. In order to help policymakers to develop long-term perspectives of the need for cooperation for optimal use of water available in the tributaries of the Ganges, the Institute was involved in a major track two exercise for over five years during the 1990s. The Institute has been undertaking a series of exercises in the form of publication and dissemination of study findings in the field since the early 1990s. In that series, this book is the latest one and is published in collaboration with Springer Science Business Media BV, Dordrecht, The Netherlands.

South Asia Trade and Energy Security Narottam P. Banskota, 2012. Today, policy makers in both developed and developing countries are pursuing regionalization as a means to achieve easier market access, economies of scale, and welfare gains. South Asia Trade and Energy Security explains how regional economic cooperation in trade and energy security could help facilitate the economic transformation of the region, reducing poverty and expanding production. Currently, intra-regional trade in South Asia is constrained by tariff and non-tariff barriers. A fully functional free trade area, as envisaged in the South Asian Free Trade Area agreement, has yet to be realized. This book explains the current patterns and limitations of energy trade between countries in South Asia and how the growing demand for energy could be met by working closely with energy-rich Iran, Burma, and Central Asian countries. Cross-border cooperation between India and China, Chinese investment in Tibet and Xinjiang, and water relations are also discussed. Policymakers, geopolitical strategists, and academics working in Asian Studies will appreciate this detailed analysis of how globalization and regional cooperation in trade and energy are playing a transformative role in South Asia's economic development.

The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India Philippe Cullet, Lovleen Bhullar, Sujith Koonan, 2024-07-12. Environmental law is a broad discipline covering issues such as nature conservation, the prevention or abatement of pollution, and waste management. It also encompasses concerns related to natural resources such as forests, minerals, and fisheries, and the balance between their use and conservation. India has been at the forefront of jurisprudential developments among countries with similar environmental, geographical, socio-economic, and cultural conditions. Concurrently, the country has been receptive to ideas and principles arising from other parts of the world or from international law. The growth of environmental and natural resources law in India has been sustained in equal measure by growing environmental awareness and the increasingly dire nature of the problems associated with the environment and natural resources, ranging from local issues to the global climate crisis. At the same time, the continuous push for development has not abated, leading to recurrent pressure to weaken existing standards for environmental protection and the management and use of natural resources. The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India offers the most comprehensive coverage of the diverse and complex discipline of environmental and natural resources law in India over the past fifty years. With forty two contributions from law and non law scholars the Handbook presents diverse perspectives on several areas including biodiversity climate change water forests agriculture health resource extraction and industrial development. By departing from the existing approach that examines natural resources law and environmental law separately The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India offers a much needed integrated analysis of the development of domestic jurisprudence vis vis the environment and natural resources.

International Watercourses Law for the 21st Century Surya P. Subedi, 2016-12-05 This edited volume presents a comprehensive and comparative view of the law of international watercourses with special reference to the issues facing the Ganges River basin. It provides an analysis of the development of international waterways law and outlines the essentials of the UN Convention on non navigational uses of international watercourses. The work presents a comparative picture with an analysis of developments in the Rhine and Mekong basins comparing developments in the legal regimes of these areas with the experience of South Asia. Presenting an up to date analysis of the current law and pointing the direction for future developments this collection will be a valuable resource for academics researchers and policy makers working in this area.

The Law of Non-navigational Uses of International Watercourses Nahid Islam, 2010-01-01 Presentation de l'auteur Despite Asia's large share of global water resources and the importance of its water for sustaining one of the largest agrarian populations in the world Asia's trans boundary water resource management regimes are poorly developed. There are only two working international regimes in South and South east Asia the Mekong and the Indus regimes. The remaining international watercourses in Asia are used by riparian countries in a self interested manner without much consideration for the interests of other states or for the environment. These national interests do not often represent the interests and needs of the local people. This book is divided into three Parts. Part I discusses the different contexts of law making in the industrialized west and in agrarian societies in Asia as well as the changing context of law making following the emergence of the concept of sustainable development Part II discusses the regime of international watercourses Part III of the book presents two case studies in Asia the Mekong and the Ganges The main argument is that in the absence of public participation in decision making and resource management the basin states revert to using the watercourses according to the principles of the classical regime The result so far has been unsustainable development environmental degradation and growing poverty of local user communities
