phenomenon called legend tripping In If You Should Go at Midnight Legends and Legend Tripping in America author Jeffrey S. Debies Carl guides readers through an exploration of legend tripping drawing on years of scholarship documentary accounts and his own extensive fieldwork Poring over old reports and legends sleeping in haunted inns and trekking through wilderness full of cannibal mutants and strange beasts Debies Carl provides an in depth analysis of this practice that has long fascinated scholars yet remains a mystery to many observers Debies Carl argues that legend trips are important social practices Unlike traditional rites of passage they reflect the modern world revealing both its problems and its virtues In society as well as in legend tripping there is ambiguity conflict crisis of meaning and the substitution of debate for social consensus Conversely both emphasize individual agency and values even in spiritual matters While people still need meaningful and transformative experiences authoritative traditional institutions are less capable of providing them Instead legend trippers voluntarily search for individually meaningful experiences and actively participate in shaping and interpreting those experiences for themselves
