Prieß, 2005-12-08 Biological and philosophical anthropologies of the 20th century keep emphasising the Sonderstellung of humans among the realm of living beings However it is not clear how this particular role should be characterised how it should be reconciled with biological findings and which theoretical and practical conclusions should be drawn from it Partly in opposition to these anthropological views on humankind biological disciplines underline the extensive similarities and common characteristics between humans and other species Apparently these biological findings concur with the criticism of anthropocentrism which is expressed in Western philosophy of nature and by ethicists To discuss these issues the Europ ische Akademie organized the conference The Uniqueness of Humankind ber die Sonderstellung des Menschen The proceedings of the conference documented in this volume approached the theoretical and practical concept of the Sonderstellung against the background of present day knowledge in biosciences Furthermore by interdisciplinary efforts an attempt was made to clarify those conceptual problems that arise with the idea of the uniqueness of humankind The present volume partly takes up and further develops topics that have been raised by volume 15 On Human Nature that was published in this series in 2002 Handbook of Interpersonal Communication Mark L. Knapp, John A. in his charge And as a racehorse owner he scrutinized the glamorous world of Thoroughbred racing Throughout his long involvement with horses Desmond Morris has never stopped asking questions In Horsewatching first published in 1988 he set out to answer them As a zoologist and a lifelong student of animal behavior he approaches the horse world in an unusual way dealing with topics often ignored in equine literature In addition to examining details of behavior Dr Morris considers such questions as why horseshoes bring good luck why we don't eat horses why jockeys are allowed to whip their mounts and why we call a bad dream a nightmare And for punters everywhere he applies his zoological mind to the all important question of why some horses run faster than others Sourcebook for Political Communication Research Erik P. The Meanings of Things I. Hodder, 2013-11-12 This unique and fascinating book concentrates on the varying roles and functions that material culture may play in almost all aspects of the social fabric of a given culture The contributors from Africa Australia and Papua New Guinea India South America the USA and both Eastern and Western Europe provide a rich variety of views and experience in a worldwide perspective Several of the authors focus on essential points of principle and methodology that must be carefully considered before any particular approach to material culture is adopted One of the many fundamental questions posed in the book is whether or not all material culture is equivalent to documents which can be read and interpreted by the outside observer If it is what is the nature of the messages or meanings conveyed in this way The book also questions the extent to which acceptance and subsequent diffusion of a religious belief or symbol may be qualified by the status of the individuals concerned in transmitting the innovation as well as by the stratification of the society involved Several authors deal with works of art and the most effective means of reaching an understanding of their past significance In some chapters semiotics is seen as the most appropriate technique to apply to the decoding of the assumed rules and grammars of material culture expression

Understanding Social Signals:

How Do We Recognize the Intentions of Others? Sebastian Loth,Jan P. De Ruiter,2016-05-30 Powerful and economic sensors such as high definition cameras and corresponding recognition software have become readily available e g for face and motion recognition However designing user interfaces for robots phones and computers that facilitate a seamless intuitive and apparently effortless communication as between humans is still highly challenging This has shifted the focus from developing ever faster and higher resolution sensors to interpreting available sensor data for understanding social signals and recognising users intentions Psychologists Ethnologists Linguists and Sociologists have investigated social behaviour in human human interaction But their findings are rarely applied in the human robot interaction domain Instead robot designers tend to rely on either proof of concept or machine learning based methods In proving the concept developers effectively demonstrate that users are able to adapt to robots deployed in the public space Typically an initial period of collecting human robot interaction data is used for identifying frequently occurring problems These are then addressed by adjusting the interaction policies on the basis of the collected data However the updated policies are strongly biased by the initial design of the robot and might not reflect natural spontaneous user behaviour In the machine learning approach learning algorithms are used for finding a mapping between the sensor data space and a hypothesised or estimated set of intentions However this brute force approach ignores the possibility that some signals or modalities are superfluous or even disruptive in intention recognition Furthermore this method is very sensitive to peculiarities of the training data In sum both methods cannot reliably support natural interaction as they crucially depend on an accurate model of human intention recognition Therefore approaches to social robotics from engineers and computer scientists urgently have to be informed by studies of intention recognition in natural human human communication Combining the investigation of natural human behaviour and the design of computer and robot interfaces can significantly improve the usability of modern technology For example robots will be easier to use by a broad public if they can interpret the social signals that users spontaneously produce for conveying their intentions anyway By correctly identifying and even anticipating the user s intention the user will perceive that the system truly understands her his needs Vice versa if a robot produces socially appropriate signals it will be easier for its users to understand the robot s intentions Furthermore studying natural behaviour as a basis for controlling robots and other devices results in greater robustness responsiveness and approachability Thus we welcome submissions that a investigate how relevant social signals can be identified in human behaviour b investigate the meaning of social signals in a specific context or task c identify the minimal set of intentions for describing a context or task d demonstrate how insights from the analysis of social behaviour can improve a robot s capabilities or e demonstrate how a robot can make itself more understandable to the user by producing more human like social signals
