

The background of the image is a close-up of Maori wood carving. It features a large, circular, sunburst-like carving on the left side, with multiple concentric rings of pointed, radiating elements. To the right of this, there are more complex, angular carvings that resemble stylized leaves or feathers. The wood has a warm, golden-brown tone, and the lighting highlights the depth and texture of the carvings.

Maori Carving Art Preserving History:

Art of Maori Carving Sidney M. Mead, 1986 Carved Histories Roger Neich, 2001 This comprehensive guide examines the personal histories roles and personalities that played into the traditional cultural art of carving It also traces the influence of European patronage and the ensuing tourist trade upon this art form as many Maori carvers began styling and catering their product to meet their clients aesthetic desires Included is a discussion of the establishment of the government sponsored Rotorua School of Maori Art in 1928 which appointed as the main tutor Eramiha Kapua a Ngati Tarawhai carver thus helping his own traditional tribal art to make the transition into a modern national art History, heritage, and colonialism Kynan Gentry, 2015-04-01 History heritage and colonialism explores the politics of history making and interest in preserving the material remnants of the past in late nineteenth and early twentieth century colonial society looking at both indigenous pasts and those of European origin Focusing on New Zealand but also covering the Australian and Canadian experiences it explores how different groups and political interests have sought to harness historical narrative in support of competing visions of identity and memory Considering this within the frames of the local and national as well as of empire the book offers a valuable critique of the study of colonial identity making and cultures of colonisation This book offers important insights for societies negotiating the legacy of a colonial past in a global present and will be of particular value to all those concerned with museum heritage and tourism studies as well as imperial history International Tourism Yvette Reisinger, Frederic Dimanche, 2010-08-27 In recent years there has been a considerable interest in the cultural aspects of tourism such as the impacts of culture on tourism planning development management and marketing However the focus has been on material forms of culture such as arts music or crafts The impacts of national culture on tourist behavior and travel decision making have not been paid much attention Only in the last two years have cross cultural issues begun to generate significant interest among academics An examination of cultural characteristics and differences is extremely important to the tourism industry because today s tourism environment is becoming increasingly international Information on the nature of the cultural differences between international tourists and locals is not readily available in tourism literature The concept of culture is very complex and includes such abstract concepts as satisfaction attitude and loyalty International Tourism brings these concepts to the undergraduate student in tourism as well as students in the related fields of marketing management international business and cross cultural communication Designed as a textbook it is organized and presented in an integrated and relevant way for the benefit of a worldwide audience Revival: Maori Symbolism (1926) Ettie A. Rout, 2018-01-17 Maori Symbolism is a story of a great race as told in their own Sacred Legends And it is even more than this It is an accurate record of the inner meaning of Life Symbolism on which the civilization of the Dark Whites all over the world is founded That symbolism stands for Cultivation of the race of the body and of the land The numerous illustrations are to be regarded as documents supporting the evidence reported in the text Some of this is of startling interest as for insurance that
