The Adult Guardianship Experiment Terry Carney, David Tait, 1997 During the 1980s Australia remade its adult guardianship laws that governed people unable to manage their own affairs or property The reforms embraced UN principles and took a common pattern with reformist North American and European countries with one key exception The rest of the world chose courts to administer the laws Australia created specialist multi disciplinary tribunals This book compares the work of guardianship tribunals and courts and argues forcefully that Australia s adult guardianship experiment in popular justice is a success Carney and Tait present work on the Australian tribunals in NSW and Victoria and compare them with overseas studies on courts and the Family Court of Australia On every measure tribunals outperform courts They are more inclusive They pay more attention to social context and functioning and are better at incorporating the affected person into the hearing striking an alliance with them Courts by contrast favour alliances with families and the medical profession Even in areas where courts might be expected to perform better they are less successful than the tribunals collecting and testing evidence and avoiding unnecessary intervention

The Scope and Structure of Civil Codes Julio César Rivera, 2014-02-04. This detailed analysis of the content and configuration of civil codes in diverse jurisdictions also examines their relationship with some branches of private law, as family law, commercial law, consumer law, and private international law. It analyzes the codification, decodification, and recodification processes, illuminating the dialogue between current codes and private law legislation in general with Constitutions and International Conventions. The commentary elucidates the changing requirements of civil law as it shifted from an early protection of patrimony to a support for commercial and contractual law. It also explains the varying trajectories of civil law, which in some jurisdictions was merged with religious legal tenets in its codification of familial relations, while in others it was fused with commercial law or indeed codified from scratch as a discrete legal corpus. Elsewhere, the volume provides material on differing approaches to consumer law, where relevant legislation may be scattered across numerous statutes, and also on private international law, a topic of increasing relevance in a world where business corporations have interests in multiple jurisdictions and often play one off against another. The volume features invited contributions from leading scholars in the field of private law brought together for an in-depth analysis of the current regulatory attitude in this field of the law in jurisdictions with diverse legal systems and traditions. In current times, we are witnessing the adoption of diverging regulatory solutions. Through the analysis of the
