

What is Competency-Based Education (CBE)?

CBE is an educational approach that shifts the balance between time and learning.

CBE means every learner every student being required to stay in class for a semester, regardless of how quickly they learn, to having students demonstrate learning at their own pace, regardless of how much time it takes.

Competency-Based Education & Personalized Learning

AP Pilot Launched

The first of many competency-based programs was launched in 1952 at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where students could earn credit for AP courses based on their performance on the exam.

AP Credits Advance

The College Board's administration of AP courses at the College Board's Advanced Placement Program.

Credit for Prior Learning

The Council for Adult and Experiential Learning (CAEL) began in 1974, advocating for credit for prior learning (CPL) and providing a national network of institutions.

First CBE Degree

Western Governors University (WGU) was the first to offer a competency-based degree program in 1999, with a focus on adult learners and working professionals.

Credit for Online Courses

Strayer University began offering competency-based programs in 2008, focusing on adult learners and working professionals.

CBE Program Accreditation

The Department of Education (DOE) began accrediting competency-based programs in 2013, with a focus on adult learners and working professionals.

C-BEN Network

The Council for Adult and Experiential Learning (CAEL) began its C-BEN Network in 2014, providing a national network of institutions.
