Kelly, 2016-04-08 This book explores Cassian's use of scripture in the Conferences especially its biblical models to convey his understanding of the desert ideal to the monastic communities of Gaul Cassian intended the scriptures and implicitly the Conferences to be the voices of authority and orthodoxy in the Gallic environment He interprets familiar biblical characters in unfamiliar ways that exemplify his ideal By imitating their actions the monk enters a seamless lineage of authority stretching back to Abraham This book demonstrates how the scriptures functioned as a dynamic force in the lives of Christian monks in the fourth and fifth centuries emphasizes the importance of Cassian in the development of the western monastic tradition and offers an alternative to the sometimes problematic descriptions of patristic exegesis as allegory or typology Cassian has been described as little more than a provider of information about Egyptian monasticism but a careful reading of his work reveals a sophisticated agenda to define and institutionalize orthodox monasticism in the Latin West The Trial of the Witnesses Paul J. Longenecker, 1998 This volume written by eleven first class scholars brings into focus the Resurrection message of the New Testament Much more than just biblical exposition these essays demonstrate how the resurrection both provides the basis for joyful living now despite the shadow of death and undergirds the Christian belief in a future after death

The Elementary Forms of the New Religious Life Roy Wallis, 2019-03-19 This book first published in 1984 examines the whole range of new religious movements which appeared in the 1960s and 1970s in the West It develops a wide ranging theory of these new religions which explains many of their major characteristics Some of the movements are well known such as Scientology Krishna Consciousness and the Unification Church Others such as the Process Meher Baba and 3 HO are much less known While some became international others remained local in other ways too such as style belief organisation they exhibit enormous diversity The movements studied here are classified under three ideal types world rejecting world affirming and world accommodating and from here the author develops a theory of the origins recruitment base characteristics and development patterns which they display The book offers a critical exploration of the theories of the new religions and analyses the highly contentious issue of whether they reflect the process of secularisation or whether they are a countervailing trend marking the resurgence of religion in the West

The Self, Civic Virtue, and Public Life Nancy E. Snow, 2024-02-01 This volume showcases new and interesting ways in which the possession of civic virtues can contribute to people's abilities to engage in public life in meaningful ways. What is the role of civic virtues in public life? How does possessing civic virtues affect persons and their capacities for participation in the public order? The chapters in this volume combine philosophical and empirically informed work to show how civic virtues can be informed by larger virtue ethical perspectives. The first two chapters discuss virtues of individuals that have not received significant empirical attention: authenticity and wisdom and psychological resilience. The next two chapters address education and the ways in which civic virtues can help us to better serve schoolchildren who are socially and economically disadvantaged as well as to broaden students' horizons with respect to character and sustainability education. The final four chapters explore the roles for virtues within various political and public realms. They offer perspectives on how virtues affect contentious politics in democratic societies and study virtues in contexts in which democracy has been stifled or torn apart by war. Together the chapters highlight the ever widening impact of the virtues on our lives and in society. The Self, Civic Virtue, and Public Life will be of interest to scholars and graduate students working in ethics, political philosophy, psychology, and philosophy of education. The Paradox of Political Philosophy Jacob Howland, 1998 An examination of Socrates' trial as played out in the Apology, Theaetetus, Euthyphro, Cratylus, Sophist, and Statesman. Finding that the heart of the dialogues is the rivalry between the characters of the Stranger of Elea and Socrates, the author devotes a chapter to each dialogue and explores the Stranger of Elea's criticism that the uncompromising pursuit of knowledge conflicts with the task of weaving together humans into a political community. The melding of the arguments of Socrates and the Stranger of Elea, the author suggests, is the best path to understanding Plato's political philosophy. Continuities and Discontinuities in Development Robert N. Emde, Robert J. Harmon, 2012-12-06 Continuities and Discontinuities in Development was the theme for the Second Biennial DPRG Retreat, a three-day meeting held at Estes Park, Colorado, in June 1982. The meeting was sponsored by the Developmental Psychobiology Research Group (DPRG) of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Colorado School of Medicine. The DPRG is a group of individuals conducting research in many areas of development who meet on a regular basis to present and discuss their work and receive feedback and encouragement. In 1974, this group was awarded an endowment fund by the Grant Foundation, the aims of which were to facilitate the research of young investigators, to encourage new research, and to provide seed money for collaborative ventures. Much of the work reported in this volume and in the earlier volume from the First DPRG Retreat is the result of that support. In addition to the work of the members of the DPRG, a select group of guests was invited to participate in the meeting.

and contribute to this volume The chapters by William Greenough Jerome Kagan and Michael Rutter result from the participation of these scholars at the retreat We would like to acknowledge the support of a number of individuals who have been instrumental in supporting the DPRG as a whole as well as those who contributed directly to the Second Biennial Retreat and to the volume

Face Perception across the Life-Span Bozana Meinhardt-Injac,Andrea

Hildebrandt,2017-03-17 Face perception is a highly evolved visual skills in humans This complex ability develops across the life span steeply rising in infancy refining across childhood and adolescence reaching highest levels in adulthood and declining in old age As such the development of face perception comprises multiple skills including sensory e g mechanisms of holistic configural and featural perception cognitive e g memory processing speed attentional control and also emotional and social e g reading and interpreting facial expression domains Whereas our understanding of specific functional domains involved in face perception is growing there is further pressing demand for a multidisciplinary approach toward a more integrated view describing how face perception ability relates to and develops with other domains of sensory and cognitive functioning In this research topic we bring together a collection of papers that provide a shot of the current state of the art of theorizing and investigating face perception from the perspective of multiple ability domains We would like to thank all authors for their valuable contributions that advanced our understanding of face and emotion perception across development

The Making of Human Concepts Denis Mareschal, Paul C. Quinn, S. E. G. Lea, 2010 Human adults appear different from other animals in their ability to form abstract mental representations that go beyond perceptual similarity In short they can conceptualize the world This apparent uniqueness leads to an immediate puzzle WHEN and HOW does this abstract system come into being To answer this question we need to explore the origins of adult concepts both developmentally and phylogenetically When does the developing child acquire the ability to use abstract concepts Does the transition occur around 2 years with the onset of symbolic representation and language Or is it independent of the emergence of language When in evolutionary history did an abstract representational system emerge Is there something unique about the human brain How would a computational system operating on the basis of perceptual associations develop into a system operating on the basis of abstract relations Is this ability present in other species but masked by their inability to verbalise abstractions Perhaps the very notion of concepts is empty and should be done away with altogether This book tackles the age old puzzle of what might be unique about human concepts Intuitively we have a sense that our thoughts are somehow different from those of animals and young children such as infants Yet if true this raises the question of where and how this uniqueness arises What are the factors that have played out during the life course of the individual and over the evolution of humans that have contributed to the emergence of this apparently unique ability This volume brings together a collection of world specialists who have grappled with these questions from different perspectives to try to resolve the issue It includes contributions from leading psychologists neuroscientists child and infant specialists and animal cognition specialists Taken together this story leads to the idea that there is no unique ingredient in the emergence of human concepts but rather a powerful and potentially unique mix of biological abilities and personal and social history that has led to where the human mind now stands A must read for students and researchers in the cognitive sciences The Bibliographic Index, 2005
