The Transnational Mosque Kishwar Rizvi, 2015-10-08 Kishwar Rizvi drawing on the multifaceted history of the Middle East offers a richly illustrated analysis of the role of transnational mosques in the construction of contemporary Muslim identity As Rizvi explains transnational mosques are structures built through the support of both government sponsorship whether in the home country or abroad and diverse transnational networks By concentrating on mosques especially those built at the turn of the twenty first century as the epitome of Islamic architecture Rizvi elucidates their significance as sites for both the validation of religious praxis and the construction of national and religious ideologies Rizvi delineates the transnational religious political economic and architectural networks supporting mosques in Saudi Arabia Iran Turkey and the United Arab Emirates as well as in countries within their spheres of influence such as Pakistan Syria and Turkmenistan She discerns how the buildings feature architectural designs that traverse geographic and temporal distances gesturing to far flung places and times for inspiration Digging deeper however Rizvi reveals significant diversity among the mosques whether in a Wahabi Sunni kingdom a Shi i theocratic government or a republic balancing secularism and moderate Islam that repudiates representations of Islam as a monolith Mosques reveal alliances and contests for influence among multinational corporations nations and communities of belief Rizvi shows and her work demonstrates how the built environment is a critical resource for understanding culture and politics in the contemporary Middle East and the Islamic world

The Transnational Mosque Kishwar Rizvi, 2020 The Contemporary Mosque Renata Holod, Hasan-Uddin Khan, 1997 This survey of the contemporary scene presents projects ranging from buildings commissioned by wealthy private individuals and local Muslim communities to imposing State Mosques serving as symbols of national prestige Mosques with strikingly modern designs for which the latest materials and construction techniques have been used contrast with examples in regional architectural styles notably in Southeast Asia and West Africa using traditional materials

Politics and Identity in Design: An Analysis of Two Contemporary Cairene Mosques Leena Sadek, 2018 Abstract Forging a national identity has been an issue many Islamic nations have undergone and struggled with in the wake of a colonial era long established in the third world The attempts at achieving such a goal have been varied with many seeking to revive their pre colonial past under new and modern implications The success of such attempts has not yet yielded a satisfactory template that can be applied without question in one nation let alone across the Islamic world Nonetheless such a quintessential conundrum has not hindered the building program of many nations who are still striving to achieve their own building style that is a reflection of their history and national identity Questions of architectural heritage what aspects of the history held true to the nations identity and which aspects were deliberately to be rejected all held an important role in shaping the end product devised by each nation and all needed to be digested to fathom the national style they sought so ardently The mosque in particular emerges as the explicit monument type due to its innately Islamic character For this reason this study is concerned with the nature of mosque building in the post modern globalized commercial city fabric we actively partake in today To remedy this disconnect and notable gap in their architecture some nations such as Turkey undertook a secular national building program to highlight their modernity Others took on the task of creating a bridge amongst Islamic nations and establishing communication between them by adopting an architecture that incorporated variant elements from different Islamic cultures as seen in the Gulf states with their transnational mosques as coined by Kishwar Rizvi In Egypt a movement returning to previous eras of glory was attempted with Neo Mamluk architecture along with attempts at channeling the long lost Pharaonic heritage a movement that quickly faded What then does contemporary mosque architecture reflect What weight does patronage carry in the outcome of the building and how much does it shape its conception What of the users and how they participate in this dialogue if at all Ultimately how successful was the mosque in reflecting an Islamic character as well as being coherent with the nature and aspirations of the society This thesis will conduct an analysis of two contemporary mosques in Cairo assessing the impact of Islam on the nature and form of the built environment The scope of the study of this thesis will be a the description of two mosques in the area of New Cairo as it is one of the most rapidly evolving sites of urban landscape in the capital and b the analysis of these monuments from the perspectives of the Modernist Traditionalist and Regionalist approaches as well as measuring the buildings success with regard to serving the community This will inevitably lead to the formulation of conclusions pertaining to the questions mentioned above The selected mosques are chosen based on their representation of each of the two dominant divisions who chiefly sponsor building in Cairo today namely the state whether the government division of the Ministry of Interior or the separate entity of the Military and the private sector

Rethinking the Mosque In the Modern Muslim Society Mohamad Tajuddin Mohamad Rasdi, 2014 The Mosque Ergün Erkoçu, 2009 Innocent houses of worship or bulwarks of fundamentalism We all have our own ideas about mosques and many of those ideas go beyond the domain of architecture In Europe mosques are a central issue in the debates about the integration of Muslims and the potential dangers of Islam In recent years such debates have often edged out serious architectural discussion of European mosques and the domes and minarets of traditional mosque architecture have come to symbolize this entire field of controversy The aim of this book is to bring greater depth and nuance to the debate about mosques Amongst others politician Frits Bolkestein architect Wilfried van Winden sociologist Willem Schinkel theologian philosopher Tariq Ramadan anthropologist Eric Roose and Ole Bouman director of the Netherlands Architecture Institute share their interdisciplinary perspectives on the emergence of this new architectural typology and explain its narrow and broad social impact With a visual presentation of the historical and general features of the mosque Mosguide as well as three intriguing pictorial essays and a range of politically and socially informed essays and opinion pieces Erkocuen Budac rethink the meaning of mosques in the Western European context Recent mosque designs serve to illustrate how rewarding this approach can be in social functional and architectural terms Book Jacket The Mosque and the Modern World Renata

Holod, Hasan-Uddin Khan, Kimberly Mims, 1997 In the decades since the ending of colonial rule new mosques have been built in significant numbers throughout the Islamic world as well as to serve Muslim communities in other countries This text features over 70 projects ranging from commissions by wealthy private individuals and local communities to imposing State Mosques The international nature of Islamic architecture is seen in the buildings featured in Pakistan for example in the Ottoman style minarets of the King Faisal Mosque Islamabad designed by the Turkish architect Vedat Dalokay In the West major complexes such as the Islamic Cultural Centre of New York the Islamic Centre and Mosque in Rome and the Regent s Park Mosque in London provide a new dimension to the urban landscape

Emergent Design Imdat As, 2002 In the digital age many notions which we take for granted such as distance time and space have changed dramatically This change in perception introduces new metaphors and understandings which require a new mosque architecture to evolve that corresponds to the spirit of the time The virtual space creates opportunities for new kinds of interaction and communication Now the village well is the computer interface which connects us with the rest of the world How can these emerging notions enrich and shape mosque architecture How would it affect and or change existing metaphors How can new mosque architecture transform existing practices and rituals without falling astray to theological teachings What kind of social cultural and religious implications would it bear The thesis is divided in three main parts first it questions the holistic mosque paradigm and explains the accumulation of religious architectural elements over centuries second it investigates the Kocatepe Mosque experience in Turkey in more detail which shed light onto the evolutionary process of the praying space and finally proposes a new mosque paradigm which converges virtual and physical spaces
