

THE LIGHT DRAGOONS

THE LIGHT DRAGOONS

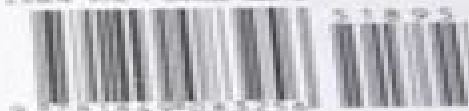

A Regimental History, 1715–2009

The Light Dragoons have distinguished themselves as courageous and dependable British cavalry since 1715. Originally raised as the 13th, 15th, 18th and 19th regiments of Light Dragoons, and subsequently redesignated as Hussars, they fought their way across the world during the Napoleonic wars, seeing service in Portugal, Spain, France and even India. During the Crimean War they made their legendary charge across the battlefield at Balaklava with the Light Brigade, and went on to see service in Afghanistan and South Africa in the late 19th century.

During the First World War, the four regiments served in the trenches of France and Flanders and the deserts of Mesopotamia (present-day Iraq), before being consolidated into two regiments – the 13th/18th and the 15th/19th. Both regiments were mechanized shortly before the Second World War, during which they covered the withdrawal to Dunkirk and took a leading part in the D-Day landings. In 1992 the two regiments were amalgamated again to form The Light Dragoons. Recent conflicts have taken the regiment to the Balkans, and once again back to Iraq and Afghanistan. This volume traces the regiment's service over almost three centuries in both peace and war.
