Translation and the Classic Paul F. Bandia,James Hadley,Siobhán McElduff,2024-02-08 Through a range of accessible and innovative chapters dealing with a spectrum of genres authors and periods this volume seeks to examine the complex relationship between translation and the classic and how translation makes and remakes and sometimes invents classic works for new audiences across space and time

Translation and the Classic is the first volume in a two volume series examining how classic works fare in translation how translation is different when it engages with classic texts and how classic texts can be shaped understood in new ways or even created through the process of translation Although other collections have covered some of this territory they have done so in partial ways or with a focus on Greek Roman and Arabic texts or translations This collection alone takes the reader from 1000 BCE up to the digital age in a sequence of chapters that encompass areas including philosophy children s literature and pseudotranslation It asks us to consider translation not just as a mechanism of distribution but as one of the primary ways that the classic is created and understood by multiple audiences This book is essential reading for those taking Translation Studies courses at the senior undergraduate and postgraduate level as well as courses outside Translation Studies such as Comparative Literature and Literary Studies

Fatherhood and Its Representations in Middle English Texts Rachel E. Moss, 2013 The figure and role of the late medieval father is reappraised through a close reading of a range of documents from the period including both letters and romances Late medieval English society placed great weight on the practices of primogeniture patrilineal descent and patriarchal government and the significance of the father had cultural resonance beyond the rule of law Yet despite aburgeoning interest in both the family and gender the father has to date received little attention from medievalists This book takes an interdisciplinary approach to the analysis of the fictions of fatherhood the ideological constructs that underpinned late medieval conceptions of fathers and patriarchy Its focus on gentry and mercantile readers and writers also offers new insights into the literary culture of late medieval England by considering how texts were produced and received within gentry and bourgeois communities and demonstrates the ability of texts to not only reflect but also shape hegemonic norms and cultural anxieties Through close examination of late medieval letters and romances it shows how the father was the dominant figure not only of medieval domestic life but also of the medieval imagination Dr RACHEL E MOSS is a Lecturer in History at the University of Northampton Presented Discourse in Popular Science Olga Pilkington, 2018-07-03 In Presented Discourse in Popular Science Olga A Pilkington explores the forms and functions of the voices of scientists in books written for non professionals This study confirms the importance of considering presentation of discourse outside of literary fiction popular science uses presented discourse in ways uncommon for fiction yet not conventional for non fiction either This analysis is an acknowledgement of the social consequences of popularization Discourse presentation of scientists reconstructs the world of the scientific community as a human space but also projects back into it an image of the scientist the public wants to see At the same time Pilkington s findings strengthen the view of popularization that rejects the notion of a strict divide between professional and popular science Social Computing, Behavioral-Cultural Modeling and Prediction Shanchieh Jay Yang, Ariel M.
