Ballou,Katherine Ralls,Mark Eldridge,Michele R. Dudash,Charles B. Fenster,Robert C. Lacy,Paul Sunnucks,2019-10-23 The habitats of most species have been fragmented by human actions isolating small populations that consequently develop genetic problems Millions of small isolated fragmented populations are likely suffering from inbreeding depression and loss of genetic diversity greatly increasing their risk of extinction Crossing between populations is required to reverse these effects but managers rarely do so A key reason for such inaction is that managers are often advised to manage populations in isolation whenever molecular genetic methods indicate genetic differences among them Following this advice will often doom small populations to extinction when the habitat fragmentation and genetic differences were caused by human activities A paradigm shift is required whereby evidence of genetic differentiation among populations is a trigger to ask whether any populations are suffering genetic problems and if so whether they can be rescued by augmenting gene flow Consequently there is now an urgent need for an authoritative practical guide to facilitate this paradigm shift in genetic management of fragmented populations

Avery, 2020-07-17 Our world is under pressure with growing inequalities in wealth and access to food and clean water We depend too heavily on polluting fuels and diminishing natural resources Traditional cultural practices are being swamped by global popular culture The Thai model of sufficiency thinking aims to transform the mindset of a whole population to achieve the seemingly impossible enriching everyone's lives in a truly sustainable way Innovative management practices developed by King Bhumibol Adulyadej of Thailand have been applied across Thailand in agriculture education business government and community organisations for over two decades In this book chapters written by eminent Thai scholars explain sufficiency thinking and review its implementation in different sectors including community development business agriculture health care schools and even in prisons Is Thailand unique in having discovered the holy grail of a more responsible form of capitalism No it is not but it is the first country whose government has adopted this kind of thinking as national policy we obviously need to revise
