Arthur Mokin,1991 History of the ironclads the Monitor and the Merrimack during the Civil War and how their technology revolutionized navies around the world The Monitor Vs. the Merrimack Dan Abnett,2008-08-11 In comic book format describes the first battle between two steam powered ironclad warships discussing the events leading up to the battle the strategies on both sides and the indecisive outcome The Monitor versus the Merrimac Dan Abnett,2006-08-15 In this historic clash in March 1862 the Union Monitor called by many a cheese box on a raft exchanged cannon shot after cannon shot with the Confederate Merrimack comically referred to as a floating barn roof Although an indecisive victory for either side the spectacular event witnessed by hundreds of people on nearby boats and shorelines forever changed the way naval warfare was to be fought Ironclad Arthur Mokin,2013-12-10 The narrative begins on April 6 1861 We meet an anxious

Gideon Welles Secretary of the U S Navy He fears war is about to break out and is concerned that the Confederates will confiscate units of the U S fleet in southern ports He is particularly concerned about the recently built USS Merrimack one of the few steam powered ships in the navy On April 12 the Confederates fire on Ft Sumter and the long devastating war begins Abe Lincoln and his cabinet realizing the south has no industrial capacity and that it plans to import all weaponry and materiel in return for cotton settle on the stratagem of blockade To his dismay Welles learns that the Confederates have seized Merrimack and plan to refit her as an ironclad with which to bust the anticipated blockade Welles also learns that a New York engineer claims to have designed an ironclad that can counter Merrimack and moreover guarantees to build it in one hundred days Each side sets about frantically to build its ironclad Merrimack in Norfolk and Monitor in New York It is a race that can decide the outcome of the war since England France and Spain signal their intention to intervene on the side of the Confederacy if the integrity of the Union blockade cannot be maintained On Saturday March 8 1862 Merrimack steams into Hampton Roads anchorage of the U S blockading force and the confederate ironclad decimates the Union fleet of wooden ships The following day Monitor steams onto the scene and the epic battle of the first ironclad warships begins it proves to be the most critical naval engagement of the war and one that renders the wooden navies of the world obsolete

The Monitor Vs The Merrimack Dan Abnett,2006-09-30 In comic book format describes the first battle between two steam powered ironclad warships discussing the events leading up to the battle the strategies on both sides and the indecisive outcome Iron Dawn Richard Snow,2017-10-24 An utterly absorbing account of one of history s most momentous battles Forbes that not only changed the Civil War but the future of all sea power from acclaimed popular historian Richard Snow who writes with verve and a keen eye The New York Times Book Review No single sea battle has had more far reaching consequences than the one fought in Hampton Roads Virginia in 1862 The Confederacy with no fleet of its own took a radical step to combat the Union blockade building an iron fort containing ten heavy guns on the hull of a captured Union frigate named the Merrimack The North got word of the project and in panicky desperation commissioned an eccentric inventor named John Ericsson to build the Monitor an entirely revolutionary iron warship Rushed through to completion in just one hundred days it mounted only two guns but they were housed in a shot proof revolving turret The ship hurried south from Brooklyn only to arrive to find the Merrimack had already sunk half the Union fleet and would be back to finish the job When she returned the Monitor was there She fought the Merrimack to a standstill and many believe saved the Union cause As soon as word of the fight spread Great Britain the foremost sea power of the day ceased work on all wooden ships A thousand year old tradition ended and the naval future opened Richly illustrated with photos maps and engravings Iron Dawn renders all previous accounts of the encounter between the Monitor and the Merrimack as obsolete as wooden war ships The Dallas Morning News Richard Snow brings to vivid life the tensions of the time in this lively tale of science war and clashing personalities The Wall Street Journal

The Battle of the Ironclads John V. Quarstein, 1999 Battle of the Ironclads brings to life the dramatic events which occurred in Hampton Roads on March 8 and 9 1862 This first battle between armored vessels often called the Monitor Merrimack engagement is perhaps the most significant naval event of the entire Civil War This thrilling history is the first volume to offer a comprehensive pictorial interpretation of the men and ships that forever changed naval warfare Over 150 images including photographs engravings paintings and sketches have been gathered from museums archives and private collections to chronicle the exciting story of the U S S Monitor and the C S S Virginia Merrimack While Battle of the Ironclads is a visual history of the first battle between armored ships it is also a saga of uncommon valor and leadership epitomized by Franklin Buchanan George U Morris Samuel Dana Greene and John Taylor Wood The brilliant innovations of John Mercer Brooke and the farsighted inventions of John Ericsson made this showdown in Hampton Roads a death for wooden sailing ships Battle of the Ironclads is indeed an epic tale that tells how steam powered iron vessels not only influenced the Civil War but more importantly how the two ironclads echoed the dawn of modern navies

Ironclads at War Dan Abnett, 2007-02-27 On March 9 1862 the world s first battle between two ironclad warships took place in the confined waters of Hampton Roads Virginia The previous day the Confederate ironclad CSS Merrimack officially the CSS Virginia impervious to her enemy s guns had sunk two Union warships When she re emerged from Norfolk to complete the destruction of the Union blockading squadron the USS Monitor steamed out to meet her The four hour duel that ensued was a stalemate but crucially the Virginia had failed to break the Northern blockade of the Southern ports In a single battle these two ironclads rendered wooden warships obsolete and transformed the face of naval warfare forever This full color comic book includes further reading essential information on the background aftermath and key players of the conflict illustrating one of the most revolutionary naval battles in world history and transports the reader to the cramped and dangerous conditions that the sailors faced for the first time      Focus on U.S. History Kathy Sammis,1997 Reproducible student activities cover the Civil War and the rebuilding of the postwar South      Ironclads at War Dan Abnett,2008-09-01 This book in the Osprey Graphic History series lets you advance into the Civil War battle with the first ironclad warships CSS Merrimac and USS Monitor as they struggle for supremacy in a four hour duel to control the seas Join Franklin and McKean Buchanan two brothers who faced each other from opposite sides as sailors fought in cramped and dangerous conditions in one of the most revolutionary naval battles in world history Full color illustrations Limited edition poster inside Graphic novel format      Ironclad Captains William N. Still,2010-09-01 The 1862 battle between the ironclads USS Monitor and the CSS Virginia aka Merrimack is rightly regarded as a key turning point in both the naval history of the American Civil War and world naval history At a stroke the wooden navies of the world were rendered obsolete by the unique craft Despite the immense significance of the ships however comparatively little information is available about the six officers who commanded the Monitor during its brief history Ironclad Captains The Commanding Officers of the USS Monitor presents brief carefully researched biographies of the six men who commanded the Monitor ranging from John Worden the man who fought his ship in the great battle to John Payne Bankhead who had to order the Monitor abandoned in sinking condition during a fierce storm off North Carolina s Outer Banks Although none of these officers commanded the Monitor for very long a mere four days in the case of Thomas Oliver Selfridge these officers were involved in most of the major naval actions of the Civil War and participated in nearly every type of activity in which the Navy was involved in that five year period In short their combined story constitutes a case history of the Union navy as well as providing fascinating details of a career in the 19th century American navy      Reign of Iron James L. Nelson,2009-10-13 At the outbreak of the Civil War North and South quickly saw the need to develop the latest technology in naval warfare the ironclad ship After a year long scramble to finish first in a race filled with intrigue and second guessing blundering and genius the two ships the Monitor and the Merrimack after a four hour battle ended the three thousand year tradition of wooden men of war and ushered in the reign of iron In the first major work on the subject in thirty five years novelist historian and tall ship sailor James L Nelson acclaimed author of the Brethren of the Coast trilogy brilliantly recounts the story of these magnificent ships the men who built and fought them and the extraordinary battle that made them legend      The Monitor and the Merrimack Lieut. J. L. Worden,Lieut Greene,H. Ashton Ramsay,2009-05 The Battle of Hampton Roads often referred to as the Battle of Monitor and Merrimack or Merrimack was the most noted and arguably the most important naval battle of the American Civil War from the standpoint of the development of navies It was fought over two days 8 9 March 1862 in Hampton Roads a roadstead in Virginia where the Elizabeth and Nansemond Rivers meet the James River just before it enters Chesapeake Bay The battle was a part of the effort of the Confederacy to break the Union blockade which had cut off Virginia s largest cities Norfolk and Richmond from international trade The significance of the battle is that it centered on a new class of warship the ironclad The Confederate fleet consisted of the ironclad ram CSS Virginia and several supporting vessels. On the first day of battle they were opposed by several conventional wooden hulled ships of the Union Navy. On that day Virginia was able to destroy two ships of the Federal flotilla and threaten a third, USS Minnesota, which had run aground. A History of Ironclads John V.

Quarstein, 2007-02-28 One of history's greatest naval engagements, the Battle of Hampton Roads, occurred on March 8 and 9, 1862. On the first morning, the Confederate ironclad the CSS Virginia, formerly known as the Merrimack, sank two Union wooden warships, proving the power of the armored vessels over the traditional sailing ships. The next morning, the Virginia engaged the Union ironclad USS Monitor to a draw in a battle that significantly altered naval warfare. It was the first engagement between ironclads and ushered in a new era of warship construction and ordnance. The 25,000 sailors, soldiers, and civilians who witnessed the battle knew then what history would soon confirm: wars waged on the waters would never be the same. The seemingly invincible Monitor and Virginia were experimental ships, revolutionary combinations of new and old technology, and their clash on March 9, 1862, was the culmination of over 2,000 years of naval experience. The construction and combat service of ironclads during the Civil War were the first in a cascade of events that influenced the outcome of the war and prompted the development of improved ironclads as well as the creation of new weapons systems such as torpedoes and submarines needed to counter modern armored warships. From Ironclads to Admiral John V. Quarstein, Robert L. Worden, 2025-04-15 Throughout his 52-year career, Rear Admiral John Lorimer Worden was always the right officer for the job. The epitome of an innovative commander, he helped move the U.S. Navy out of the age of sail and into the era of ironclad technology. Worden's contributions extended beyond the Battle of Hampton Roads and shaped the future of the Navy. He demonstrated exceptional leadership in both combat and peacetime. Worden immediately proved himself a capable choice for key assignments, leading a successful rescue mission and capturing a prize ship during the Mexican-American War. Three tours at the U.S. Naval Observatory established him as a scientific officer. After delivering secret dispatches in 1861 that kept Fort Pickens in Florida for the Union, Worden attempted to return to Washington, D.C., and was arrested by Confederate authorities, thus becoming the first prisoner of war during the Civil War. After six months in captivity, he returned to command the USS Monitor, the little ship that saved the nation at the historic Battle of Hampton Roads. There, he faced the Confederate CSS Virginia in the first ever clash of ironclads, suffering severe wounds while fighting the battle to a standstill. Upon recovery, he returned to command the USS Montauk, where his unparalleled expertise in ironclad design and combat tactics continued to set him apart. From testing ships in battle to overseeing the innovative production of ironclads at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, he consistently refined his craft. Confronted with multiple ship design failures, he relentlessly drove improvements, pushing the boundaries of naval technology and securing lasting progress in the development of modern warships. After the war, Worden became superintendent of the U.S. Naval Academy, where he trained the next generation of naval officers and co-founded the U.S. Naval Institute. His five-year tenure at the academy was not without controversy, as it tested his leadership.

He deftly handled a nationally embarrassing hazing scandal resulting in congressional authority for the superintendent to directly discipline and expel errant midshipmen Worden also managed sensitive issues surrounding the appointment of the first African American midshipman and the first Japanese midshipman while he helmed the academy Worden capped his career by ably serving as commander in chief of the European Squadron during a time of upheaval on that continent Displaying courage commitment and diplomacy Worden skillfully led U S European naval forces from 1875 to 1877 From Ironclads to Admiral s thorough examination of Worden s life and leadership emphasizes his strategic insights innovative spirit and dedication to service Readers will uncover the profound impact of an officer of great achievement who inspired others to say Let Worden do it

A Crisis of Loyalties: The Destruction and Abandonment of the Gosport Navy Yard Stephen Chapin, 2024-04-02 In the opening days of the American Civil War the U S Navy suffered the catastrophic loss of its most valuable navy yard at Gosport Virginia commonly known as the Norfolk Navy Yard Its fate was sealed by Virginia s vote for secession and the subsequent resignation of most of the yard s Southern officers leaving its commandant Charles Stewart McCauley virtually defenseless Early in the morning of Sunday 21 April fleeing federal forces set fire to and abandoned the Gosport Navy Yard burning ten warships and surrendering 1 200 naval guns to Virginia s militia A year later the Confederate ironclad Virginia built on the charred hulk of the steam frigate Merrimack chose the sloop Cumberland the one ship to escape Gosport as her first target during the Battle of Hampton Roads Virginia then attacked the frigate Congress leaving in her wake nearly 280 dead or wounded Union sailors and two sunken ships The birds from the disaster of Gosport had finally come home to roost In his quest to uncover the details behind Gosport s destruction the author methodically cross tracked chronologies carefully examined primary sources and dug deeper into the principal officers backgrounds to grasp just what was in their minds during the hours leading up to the navy yard s burning This fresh focus has yielded a more nuanced explanation of McCauley s decision to hold back Merrimack of Paulding s rush to burn the yard and run and of opportunities for success missed by all three commodores present A Crisis of Loyalties is the first full length work of history to present the entire story of the destruction and abandonment of the Gosport Navy Yard
