

A black and white photograph of a snowy park path. The path is covered in a thick layer of snow, with some footprints visible. On the left, a large, dark tree trunk stands prominently. Several other bare trees line the path, their branches reaching out against a pale sky. In the distance, a person is walking away from the camera, holding a dark umbrella. To the right, there are several wooden park benches, some of which are partially covered in snow. The overall atmosphere is quiet and wintry.
