MeanScore Scoring – A Pharmacy

Mean Scores are provided by the Iowa Prescription Monitoring Program (IPMP) as part of a patient's MeanScore report. Mean Scores provide an additional tool to help providers evaluate a patient's risk profile. Currently, there are four different scores available: Narcotics, Sedatives, Stimulants, and Combination (Narcotics Risk). Scores range from 000 to 999 and reflect each patient exposure to narcotics, sedatives, and stimulants, with higher scores representing a relatively higher risk of overdose or potential misuse. Other factors used to calculate Mean Scores include the number of prescriptions and pharmacies, or prescribed drugs, overlapping prescription days, and the quantity/indication of medication dispensed. The number in their third position (000) represents the number of active prescriptions under that category. For example, a Narcotic Mean Score of 200 would indicate that a patient has four active narcotic prescriptions.

In an average patient population, Mean Scores will be low for most patients, with 70% of scores being less than 200. In that average patient population, approximately 2% of scores will be more than 500, while approximately 1% will be greater than 600. It is important to note that the Narcotic Score may contribute to the Sedative Score and vice versa. As a result, a patient may have a Narcotic Score even when they have not been prescribed a narcotic. Of note, there is no "combined" score, and scores should be evaluated on a patient-by-patient basis. A high Mean Score is not necessarily an indication of abuse, and scores alone cannot be used to determine the appropriateness or misuse of medications. Rather, scores are intended to provide clinical guidance and general patient-provider discussion. Scores are not intended to be used in isolation or as a replacement for other clinical decision-making.
