

Cómo buscar su ubicación actual

Una sola pulsación le permite determinar su ubicación actual (aproximada).

Encontrar su ubicación actual y activar el modo de seguimiento: Pulse .

Su ubicación actual se muestra con un marcador de color azul. Si no es posible determinar su ubicación con precisión, también aparecerá un círculo azul alrededor del marcador. El tamaño del círculo depende de la precisión con la que se ha determinado su ubicación: cuanto menor es el círculo, mayor es la precisión.

A medida que se mueva, el iPhone actualizará su ubicación y ajustará el mapa de modo que el indicador de posición permanezca en el centro de la pantalla. Si vuelve a pulsar  hasta que deje de estar resaltado o si arrastra el mapa, el iPhone seguirá actualizando su ubicación, pero dejará de centrarla, por lo que sus datos de posición pueden quedar fuera de la pantalla.

El iPhone utiliza los servicios de localización para determinar su posición. Los servicios de localización emplean la información disponible en las redes de telefonía móvil, las redes Wi-Fi locales (si Wi-Fi está activado) y el sistema GPS (puede no estar disponible en todas las zonas). Si una app está usando los servicios de localización,  aparecerá en la barra de estado. Los servicios de localización pueden no estar disponibles en todos los países o regiones.

Si los servicios de localización están desactivados, se le preguntará si desea activarlos. No podrá determinar ni realizar el seguimiento de su posición actual si los servicios de localización están desactivados. Consulte "Localización" en la página 213.

Para conservar batería, desactive los servicios de localización cuando no los utilice. En Ajustes, seleccione General > Localización.

Obtener información acerca de la ubicación actual: Pulse el marcador de color azul y, a continuación, pulse . El iPhone muestra la dirección de su ubicación actual, si está disponible. Puede utilizar esta información para:
