

Strings An array of metal coils, not just any steel, this is the neck's secret. It allows adjustment to compensate for the extra strain of metal strings - the guitar 'settles down' over time until the early 1950s of the 20th century. The true metal strings and some required wires at the top of the neck (see page 100).

Machine Heads Six machine heads aligned in a staggered row - achieving a straight string path - important for stability especially when using vibrato. The iconic headstock has varied, but in the early 21st century the classic has returned. See Specific case studies on page 104.

Neck A one piece removable neck - classically with an integrated maple fingerboard - many Strats now have conventional rosewood fingerboards which are not just harder wearing but also have an effect on the sound. Many players insist on the original formula. The 'A' wood screw feature means a 'bottle' can take an hour not 3 days (see page 100). The original 21 frets are now often augmented to 22.

Pickguard Though shown here as components - virtually all the electronics can be removed as one piece for simply mounting the pickups. The majority of Strats and Telecasters have 1950s style electronics.

Pickups These single but effective single coil pickups revolutionised the sound of the electric guitar and set the stage for Rock 'n' Roll. A pickup update is simple (see page 103).

Pickup Selector One accessible three-way switch for instant changes of tone colour. Now most commonly a five-way switch and sometimes augmented with FSR, 'SRX', 'Delta tone' and '5L switching'. See Specific case studies starting on page 104.
