Hampshire Second World War Photographs:

Lee Miller, Photography, Surrealism and the Second World War Lynn Hilditch, 2018-01-23 Lee Miller 1907 1977 was an American born Surrealist and war photographer who through her role as a model for Vogue magazine became the apprentice of Man Ray in Paris and later one of the few women war correspondents to cover the Second World War from the frontline. Her comprehensive understanding of art enabled her to photograph vivid representations of Europe at war, the changing gender roles of women in war work, the destruction caused by enemy fire during the London Blitz and the horrors of the concentration camps that embraced and adapted the principles and methods of Surrealism. This book examines how Miller's war photographs can be interpreted as surreal documentary, combining a surrealist sensibility with a need to inform. Each chapter contains a close analysis of specific photographs in a generally chronological study with a thematic focus, using comparisons with other photographers, documentary artists and Surrealists such as Margaret Bourke White, Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, George Rodger, Cecil Beaton, Bill Brandt, Henry Moore, Humphrey Jennings and Man Ray. In addition, Miller's photographs are explored through Andr  Breton's theory of convulsive beauty, his credence that any subject, no matter how horrible, may be interpreted as art, and his notion of the marvellous.

Yateley in the Great War Peter J. Tipton, 2018-07-30 There were fewer than 500 houses in Yateley in WWI but with Aldershot, Farnborough, Camberley and Sandhurst close by, this Hampshire village's response to the call to arms was more prepared than most and punched above its weight. Using contemporary evidence from many sources researched by our local history team, the Yateley Society recreates the impact of the War on our predecessors. The story of the men who left Yateley to fight, territorials, regulars, volunteers and conscripts, is told alongside that of the battalions of Kitcheners' New Armies training in trench warfare on Yateley Common. At the same time, in the three private houses forming the Yateley Military Hospital, Yateley women of all ages were tending wounded soldiers. With its intimate glimpses into village life, this book will fascinate anyone with Yateley connections. The names of many families in the village of 100 years ago are here, while for recent newcomers, with perhaps a Victorian or Edwardian house, there may be clues to the history of your homes. With its many illustrations and maps, this exploration of the social network and social consequences of the Great War on a small community in North East Hampshire has interest for historians and general readers alike.
