

The image shows the front cover of a vintage Haynes Guidebook for Yellowstone National Park. The cover has a dark green, textured spine and a matching dark green border around the central illustration. The illustration is a stylized, mid-century modern style depiction of a geyser erupting. A large, billowing white plume of steam or smoke rises from a yellowish-brown mound in the foreground. The plume is accented with light green and blue shading to suggest movement and depth. In the background, there are horizontal bands of color representing the landscape: a dark teal band for water or a lake, a light green band for grassy fields, and a distant blue horizon. The sky is a solid, vibrant blue. The title 'HAYNES GUIDE' is printed in large, bold, red capital letters across the upper portion of the white geyser plume. At the bottom of the cover, the words 'YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK' are printed in the same bold, red capital letters against the yellowish-brown foreground.
