Going Home To The Fifties:

Ireland in the 1950s: News From A New Republic Tom Garvin, 2011-09-02 The 1950s was a decade of international economic recovery in the United States and most of Western Europe after the disasters of World War II There was just one exception The Irish economy actually contracted in those years and over four hundred thousand people out of a population of fewer than three million emigrated Tom Garvin's survey of the 1950s is based largely on a close reading of contemporary newspaper reports and analyses This darkest decade of the Irish state was brought about by an aging government that overstayed its welcome and an ideology of rural frugality that was supported by an under developed educational system and the overweening power of the Catholic Church Garvin also traces the rise of the generation that broke this consensus and carried Ireland into the free trade boom of the 1960s

Childhood Penny Legg,James Marsh,2013-05-01 The 1950s was a time of regeneration and change for Southampton For children growing up during this decade life was changing fast They still made their own toys and earned their own pocket money but on new television sets Andy Pandy 1950 and Bill and Ben 1952 delighted them With rationing discontinued confectionary was on the menu again and for children Southampton life in the 1950s was sweet If you saw a Laurel and Hardy performance at The Gaumont Theatre or made dens out of bombed out buildings then you ll thoroughly enjoy this charming and nostalgic account of the era The Forgotten Fifties John Murphy,Judith Smart,1997 Some of Australia s leading historians present new perspectives on social and cultural life in the 1950s The 1950s is usually treated in the popular media as a metaphor for an Australia that was complacent monocultural banal and domesticated On the other hand historical writing about the decade has long been dominated by accounts of political and foreign policy conflict the Labor Split the Cold War and the seemingly endless long summer of Robert Menzies This collection assembles some of Australia's leading historians to present new perspectives on the 1950s Focusing on social and cultural themes they reveal a decade full of contradictions which belie the common simplistic accounts of the time Ranging from the education of the young Barry Humphries to the idea of an Australian identity in the lead up to the 1956 Olympics these essays also include the personal recollections of three leading historians providing a lively and critical insight into the Australia of the period Drawing out themes such as style sexuality modernism the suburbs travel writing and immigrant assimilation the authors excavate the experience of everyday life and the attitudes that characterised the 1950s They present a past that despite having shaped our lives continues to be disputed in contemporary Australia

Growing up in Adelaide in the 1950's Susan

Blackburn, 2013-02-01 Growing up in the fifties was a time of isolation and innocence We didn't know what was going on in the rest of the world We could only compare ourselves with those around us So writes Max Lees in his reminiscence Freedom one of the 13 contributions to this delightful evocation of childhood edited by Susan Blackburn An associate professor at Monash University and a specialist in Southeast Asian politics who grew up in suburban Adelaide Blackburn asked friends and acquaintances to join her in trying to recreate the experience of childhood in that place in that time Most of the memories in this book are of happy sunlit childhoods but there are shadows too Polio was a constant fear and unwanted children were often neglected in orphanages On the whole though the experiences of the contributors were positive and they look back on the fifties with enjoyment inviting us into their childhood and teenage worlds
