Healing the Broken Mind Timothy A. Kelly, 2009-08 We have come a long way over the past few decades in our understanding of mental illness and its potential treatments Yet tragically many across the country who struggle with serious mental illness are unable to find effective quality medical treatment As a federal commission on mental health concluded the system of care is in shambles But why And how do we fix it Timothy A Kelly former Commissioner of Virginia's Department of Mental Health Retardation and Substance Abuse brings his three decades of experience as mental health commissioner psychology professor and clinician to bear in confronting this crisis in America's mental health care system In clear and accessible terms he exposes the weaknesses in the current system examining how and why one of the world's richest and most advanced countries has allowed its most vulnerable citizens to be victimized by the very system designed to help them

Out of Denial - a Mother's Success Story Alyse King, 2013-12-02 Based on my experience Mental illness is the worst in human sufferings and tragedies It is not just a personal disaster it is not just a family disaster nor is it a community disaster Mental illness is a universal tragedy More than 450 million people suffer from mental disorders Many more have mental problems Schizophrenia and bi polar disorders affect over 24 million people worldwide Bi polar affects over 5 million in the United States Depression alone affects 350 million people worldwide Parents all over America living in households and communities that create modern stressors should be concerned and worried about their children s mental health keeping in mind that stress is an inducer of mental illness especially if there are genetic predispositions to this neurological imbalance The reason for concern is that anyone s son or daughter brother or sister mother or father friend acquaintance or neighbor could at any time succumbed to a neurological imbalance induced by daily stressors It shatters lives and may take years to stabilize or result in never being able to return to a quality of life conducive to community living Coping is difficult Accessing the road to recovery is even harder To cope with mental illnesses many may turn to illegal drugs alcohol or promiscuity in desperation to escape their feelings of bewilderment about what is happening to them Most may have feelings of hopelessness uncertainty and despair Many family relationships are broken and marriages may fail Too many may even turn to violence and crime and instead of receiving the therapies and medication that they need become housed in an already overcrowded and financially overburdened prison system The most unfortunate who cannot cope MAY COMMIT SUICIDE OR MURDER Studies have shown that mental illnesses lead to unemployment homelessness poverty overcrowded street corners parks jails and prison systems and increase overall criminal activity including white collar crime and violence in all its forms which is perpetrated onto healthy members of society in the form of domestic abuse sexual harassment sexual trafficking and child exploitation If a person does not have access to the proper medical attention left undiagnosed and untreated a person will become despondent and ultimately may take his or her life or endanger someone else s life This is PROFOUNDLY DANGEROUS to a civil society and will result in its destruction one person at a time one household at a time one community at a time Studies have shown that At any given time there are many more Americans with untreated severe psychiatric illnesses living on America s streets than are receiving care in hospitals Americans with untreated schizophrenia and manic depressive illness comprise one third or 250 000 of the estimated 744 000 homeless population It has been stated that adequate mental health care is lacking in ALL American cities It continues to be a problem and is associated with high levels of social burden and cost partially leading to municipal financial failure as well as an incalculable amount of individual pain and suffering Stigmas are also a challenge Stigma is also a global problem They are barriers to accessing adequate care Stigmas against Americans who are mentally ill are damaging and destructive in that they prevent those who are feeling mentally troubled from seeking assistance that would result in avoiding mental breakdown In the past many efforts to minimize stigmas were attempted but failed The American government has tried to reduce stigmas but it has failed Private individuals have tried to reduce stigmas but they have also failed Reducing stigmas is the responsibility of each American Exhibiting non stigmatizing behavior is an individual decision It begins with one American behaving compassionately towards one other American Between the Rock and a Hard Place Bonita B. Williams, 2017-06-24 Approximately 20% of all Americans are mentally ill Unlike other chronic illnesses mental illness is treated punitively in the harshest public facility available prison Mental illness receives minimal support though federal and state funds Having failed to create community health centers which were promised as far back as the Nixon Administration America has defaulted to incarcerating the mentally ill a practice not implemented since the late 1800s Challenging our nation to upgrade services for the least among us Bonita Williams shares her personal walk of faith guiding her son through this abyss referred to as the mental healthcare system in America
