

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and that they should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. He becomes more sympathetic toward them and eventually comes to see them as equals.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry is a regiment made up of African-American soldiers from different backgrounds. Some were born free, while others were born into slavery. They come from different parts of the country, including the South, the North, and the West. This diversity reflects the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers in the 54th look down on the African-American soldiers. They see them as inferior and believe that they are not capable of fighting in the military. However, as the movie progresses, the white soldiers begin to see the African-American soldiers as individuals and not just as a race. They begin to respect them and their abilities.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than whites, they were given less food and shelter, and they were often treated with disrespect and discrimination. However, they were given the same training and fought the same battles as the white soldiers.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows that he is willing to die for his men. He knows that the odds are against them, but he believes that they are capable of fighting and winning. His decision to fight to the death is a testament to his leadership and his commitment to his men.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings/oughts does your tell, why?

The incident ended as I expected. The 54th Massachusetts fought bravely and won the battle. This was a significant victory for the African-American soldiers and for the Union army. It showed that they were capable of fighting and winning in the military. The movie ends on a hopeful note, suggesting that the future is bright for the African-American people.
