God's Trombones: Seven Negro Sermons in Verse James Weldon Johnson, 2023-01-09 God's Trombones Seven Negro Sermons in Verse is a 1927 book of poems by James Weldon Johnson patterned after traditional African American religious oratory African American scholars Henry Louis Gates and Cornel West have identified the collection as one of Johnson's two most notable works the other being Autobiography of an Ex Colored Man Johnson observed an absence of attention in folklore studies to what he called a folk sermon then went on to describe its nature and specific examples from his memory I remember hearing in my boyhood sermons that were current sermons that passed with only slight modifications from preacher to preacher and from locality to locality Such sermons were The Valley of Dry Bones which was based on the vision of the prophet in the 37th chapter of Ezekiel the Train Sermon in which both God and the devil were pictured as running trains one loaded with saints that pulled up in heaven and the other with sinners that dumped its load in hell the Heavenly March which gave in detail the journey of the faithful from earth on up through the pearly gates to the great white throne Then there was a stereotyped sermon which had no definite subject and which was quite generally preached it began with the Creation went on to the fall of man rambled through the trials and tribulations of the Hebrew Children came down to the redemption by Christ and ended with the Judgment Day and a warning and an exhortation to sinners Johnson explains the title's use of the trombone by discussing the vocal and rhetorical qualities of a preacher he had recently heard who he felt exemplified the compelling and persuasive nature of the folk preacher naming the trombone as the instrument possessing above all others the power to express the wide and varied range of emotions encompassed by the human voice and with greater amplitude He also cited a dictionary definition that noted the trombone as being the brass instrument most resembling the range and sound of the human voice The seven poems were composed primarily in 1926 with Go Down Death being composed in the space of a single afternoon on Thanksgiving Day 1926 and the remaining five poems during a two week retreat The Creation the first poem of the set had been composed about 1919 The work went on to find acclaim in many circles proving enormously popular among both the black cognoscenti as well of the masses of black Americans and being used widely in oratorical contests poet Owen Dodson wrote Johnson in 1932 to tell him that Dodson and his brother had taken first and second place in a poetry recitation competition with works from that volume Gates and West particularly note that the work attempts a mimetic capturing of the black church sermon without making recourse to the misspellings and orthographic tricks often employed in representing black vernacular speech Dorothy Canfield Fisher in a personal letter to the poet to thank him and offer to help promote the collection praised the work as heart shakingly beautiful and original with the peculiar piercing tenderness and intimacy which seems to me special gifts of the Negro it is a profound satisfaction to find those special qualities so exquisitely expressed The poem The Creation was used in the 1951 film Five serving as the soliloquy for the character Charles played by African American actor Charles Lampkin Lampkin convinced film maker Arch Oboler to include excerpts of the poem in the final script of Five where it would become Lampkin s soliloquy for his character Charles This may be the first time that audiences in the USA Latin America and Europe were exposed to African American poetry albeit not identified as such in the film wikipedia org God's Trombones James Weldon Johnson,1976 God's Trombones James Weldon Johnson,2008-06-01 James Weldon Johnson was a leading figure of the Harlem Renaissance and one of the most revered African Americans of all time whose life demonstrated the full spectrum of struggle and success In God's Trombones one of his most celebrated works inspirational sermons of African American preachers are reimagined as poetry reverberating with the musicality and splendid eloquence of the spirituals This classic collection includes aListen Lord a Prayer a The Creation a The Prodigal Son a Go Down Deatha A Funeral Sermon a Noah Built the Ark a The Crucifixion a Let My People Go a and The Judgment Day a God's Trombones James Weldon Johnson,1955 God's Trombones James. Weldon Johnson,1953 God's Trombones James Weldon Johnson,2023-02-21 African American scholars have cited James Weldon Johnson s 1927 book of poems God s Trombones Seven Negro Sermons in Verse as one of the author s most notable works Johnson who is best known for his 1912 work The Autobiography of an Ex Colored Man was an American writer and civil rights activist born in Jacksonville Florida in 1871 As a leader of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Johnson helped to bring awareness to the problem of black lynching in America during the first part of the 20th century as well as other civil rights issues that people of color faced in America A collection of eight poems God s Trombones draws upon the tradition in the black church of drawing upon black folklore to preach the word of god The title of the work has been described by Johnson as a metaphor for the powerfully persuasive nature of the vocal and rhetorical qualities of the sermons of a folk preacher Immediately upon its publication God s Trombones would go on to achieve great critical acclaim in the black community further helping to establish Johnson as one of the principal figures of the Harlem Renaissance This edition is printed on premium acid free paper God's Trombones Willie Calhoun,1973 God's Trombones James Weldon Johnson,1963 Image, Text, Sound Renee Deanne Ater,1993 God's Trombone: Seven Negro Sermons In Verse James Weldon Johnson,1965 God's trombones James Weldon Johnson,1980 The Harlem Renaissance Tamra B.
