Improving Medical Education Institute of Medicine, Board on Neuroscience and Behavioral Health, Committee on Behavioral and Social Sciences in Medical School Curricula, 2004-07-28 Roughly half of all deaths in the United States are linked to behavioral and social factors. The leading causes of preventable death and disease in the United States are smoking, sedentary lifestyle along with poor dietary habits and alcohol consumption. To make measurable improvements in the health of Americans, physicians must be equipped with the knowledge and skills from the behavioral and social sciences needed to recognize, understand, and effectively respond to patients as individuals, not just to their symptoms. What are medical schools teaching students about the behavioral and social sciences? In the report, the committee concluded that there is inadequate information available to sufficiently describe behavioral and social science curriculum content, teaching techniques, and assessment methodologies in U.S. medical schools and recommends development of a new national behavioral and social science database. The committee also recommended that the National Board of Medical Examiners ensure that the U.S. Medical Licensing Examination adequately cover the behavioral and social science subject matter recommended in this report.

Health Education and Promotion Diana Karczmarczyk, Sara T. Pappa, 2024-08-30 This comprehensive textbook provides students with an accessible overview of both the key concepts and practical skills required to work in the field of health education and promotion. Health, Wellbeing, Competence And Aging Ping-chung Leung, Jean Woo, Walter Kofler, 2013-08-19 The fear of death may translate into the desire for longevity. However, longevity is a true blessing only if it is coupled with good health. Healthiness in today's expectation is not simply a disease-free state. Rather, it is very much a state of wellbeing and competence, both physically and socially. While Oriental medicine emphasizes on the promotion of physiological balance and internal balance as an integral requirement for longevity, other cultures also have various sophisticated concepts and orientations. This book successfully collates all the different views and approaches from Austria, Russia, China, and Japan in the exploration of Health, Wellbeing, Competence, and Aging.
