

TECHNICAL FEATURES

A.P. SURETRAC TORQUE BIASING FRONT DIFFERENTIAL

CONSTRUCTION

In this mechanism, torque is transmitted through the differential using a cam and follower principle.

The differential is groove-fitted in the differential case (which receives torque from a ring gear) so that the cam followers can move to the left and right. Torque is transmitted by contact of the cam faces at the left and right ends of the cam followers with the cam faces of the both face cams (equivalent to the side gears in a conventional configuration).

When the differential operates, the cam followers move to the left and right back and forth, transmitting torque to the face cams.

The performance of this type of differential differs from conventional types because the torque difference is established before any relative motion takes place. The tire dynamics dictate the torque generated so that the differential always provides the optimum torque balance. This maintains tire adhesion and enhances directional stability and safety.

This construction differs from a conventional differential in the following ways:

- Fewer number of structural parts
- Reduced steering load
- Greater durability
