Karst Hydrology Ognjen Bonacci, 2012-12-06 Karst is characterized particularly by special landforms and sub surface drainage The various actions of water result in numerous variations of surface and sub surface karst forms They also bring about distinctive geologic morphologic forms and more striking ly specific flora and fauna The scientific discipline of hydrology although a long established science cannot easily be applied to karst regions with their very complex drainage system A special approach is therefore necessary to understand and predict water circulation in these areas This is the viewpoint we must adopt if hydrology is to solve the complex problems of karst phenomena This book can be seen as the appeal of a hydrologist to experts from different scientific disciplines geology hydrology geomorphology geography geo physics meteorology ecology civil engineering forestry agriculture etc to collaborate towards a better understanding of karst areas Evidently karst phenomena have not been sufficiently and carefully studied worldwide It is equally true that the first theories on water circulation in karst were developed according to experiences in the Dinaric karst This can easily be explained Inhabitants in those areas had no place to which to escape as was the case in other countries Montana Geographic Names Geological Survey (U.S.).
