Environmental Engagement and Cultural Value: Global Perspectives for Protecting the Natural World Fanli Jia, Tobias Krettenauer, 2020-02-04 Environmental issues are a rapidly growing focal point in today's global discussion. These issues are becoming increasingly pertinent due to the potentially devastating outcomes of human environmental carelessness. As a species, humans now have realized the need for worldwide environmental engagement. This engagement is intended to heighten awareness about environmental problems, build knowledge in education, and change human behaviors to improve sustainability. Synthesizing the literature on cultural dimensions, e.g., attitudes, beliefs, values, that undergird positive views of environmental issues and engagement of sustainability practices would significantly contribute to the development of effective approaches to fostering sustainable environmental practices. Through the identification of commonalities across cultures and sensitivity to cultural differences, we can begin to work toward a global consensus on viable solutions. This critical issue.

Children, Citizenship and Environment Bronwyn Hayward, 2012-08-21 Children growing up today are confronted by four difficult and intersecting challenges: dangerous environmental change, weakening democracies, growing social inequality, and a global economy marked by unprecedented youth unemployment and unsustainable resource extraction. Yet on streets everywhere there is also a strong youthful energy for change. This book sets out an inspiring new agenda for citizenship and environmental education, which reflects the responsibility and opportunities facing educators, researchers, parents, and community groups to support young citizens as they learn to make a difference on the issues that concern them. Controversial yet ultimately hopeful, political scientist Bronwyn Hayward rethinks assumptions about youth citizenship in neoliberal democracies Her comparative discussion draws on lessons from New Zealand a country where young citizens often express a strong sense of personal responsibility for their planet but where many children also face shocking social conditions Hayward develops a SEEDS model of ecological citizenship education Social agency Environmental Education Embedded justice Decentred deliberative democracy and Self transcendence The discussion considers how the SEEDs model can support young citizens democratic imagination and develop their handprint for social justice From eco worriers and citizen scientists to streetwise sceptics Children Citizenship and Environment identifies a variety of forms of citizenship and discusses why many approaches make it more difficult not easier for young citizens to effect change This book will be of interest to a wide audience in particular teachers of children aged eight to twelve and professionals who work in Environmental Citizenship Education as well as students and researchers with an interest in environmental change democracy and intergenerational justice Introduced by Tim Jackson author of Prosperity without Growth the book includes forewords by leading European and USA academics Andrew Dobson and Roger Hart Half the author s royalties will be donated to child poverty projects following the earthquakes in Christchurch New Zealand Follow Bronwyn Hayward s blog at <http://growinggreens.blogspot.co.nz> See Bronwyn Hayward discuss the book at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=kptEw1aZXtM> feature you tube consequences ranging from climate change through loss of biodiversity to pollution and resource depletion that may permit environmental degradation on a planetary scale. It also involves helping them to develop the skills needed to cope with such challenges. This international collection of research papers and position statements from special issues of the Journal of Geography in Higher Education and Applied Environmental Education and Communication, written by many of the leading practitioners in the field, aims to provide resources and practical guidance for all seeking to promote and engage in education for a sustainable future. Rabindranath Tagore encouraged each learner to make their actions demonstrate a harmonious union between education and environment. David Orr argued that the world needs people who live well in their places to make the world both habitable and humane and that the main challenge for education is to help learners make their minds fit for life on Earth. This book tries to chart a practical route towards these objectives. This book was previously published as special issues of the Journal of Geography in Higher Education and Applied Environmental Education and Communication.

The Nature of Transformation Darlene E. Clover, Bruno de O. Jayme, Budd L. Hall, Shirley Follen, 2013-02-11. The Nature of Transformation: Environmental Adult Education is based on 15 years of educating for social environmental change around the world. It is for adult and community educators, trainers, literacy and health care practitioners, social activists, community artists and animators, labour educators and professors in higher education interested in weaving environmental issues into their educational practice. It is also for environmental activists and educators who want to link social issues to environmental issues and problems. The Nature of Transformation includes a discussion of key adult education theories we used to augment our educational practice, provides a plethora of educational activities, shares workshop design considerations and some of the challenges we faced in our work as well as stories from adult and community educators around the world. The book concludes with a list of resources to enhance understandings of adult education theory and practice. The Nature of Transformation illustrates how to critically and creatively integrate the rest of nature concepts of ecological and gender and justice, citizenship, critical environmental consciousness and activism into educating and learning in community settings, organisations, education institutions or workplaces. In particular, there is an emphasis on using the arts as a tool for learning and change. With its emphasis on acknowledging and confronting ecological oppression, working towards socio-environmental justice, ensuring hope and fun are integral to the learning process, encouraging defiance, agency and creativity, challenging assumptions and helping people to find solutions, environmental adult education is a valuable player in any pedagogical quest for change and transformation.
