

CURRICULUM

7 questions school leaders should ask when building their curriculum

Now that the new Ofsted Inspection Framework has had a few years to settle, Elyse Eversell, senior product manager at Pearson, sets out the key curriculum questions for leaders to build into their curriculum design plans...

1 What outcomes are we trying to secure for our pupils?

While schools are busy that to have a clear vision statement, and school development plan, you need to break this down more explicitly in terms of what you intend for pupils to learn.

Identify/looking for evidence that intent is being thoughtfully balanced curriculum. Review writing the story from your highest statements, demonstrate thought book like in each subject, and for each age group.

Make sure you involve all staff governors, parents/carers and, crucially, the children. The focus should be on daily lesson observations, but also a shared sense of purpose in the wider setting, and how it holds together.

Be ambitious for all pupils, including those with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND), and consider how any end-of-stage progress is achieved by a relative progression.

2 Is everyone on board with our curriculum?

A key feature of the Ofsted Inspection Framework is that curriculum leads/teachers, often not often middle leaders, are spending more time with the teachers that are others.

Shared tasks of how well the school leadership team have understood and applied "values, policies and practice" to enable the intended outcomes to be achieved through each subject area.

The school leadership team includes governors and trustees who are responsible for leading the school and its leaders to ensure the vision, strategy and quality of education in the school. Make carefully how you bring these stakeholders on the journey with you to make sure everyone is singing the same song.
