Embryology Epigenesis Evolution Taking Development Seriously      Selfish Genes and Christian Ethics Neil Messer, 2007-03-30 The evolutionary origins of human beings and in particular the origins of human morality have always attracted debate and speculation not just in the academic community but in popular science and the wider general population as well The arguments and explanations put forward over the years seem to thoroughly catch the popular imagination but there is the danger that these explanations tend to step outside the bounds of scientific theory and become powerful popular myths instead In Neil Messer's Selfish Genes and Christian Ethics the author is challenging this tendency Instead he provides a Christian theological anthropology which among other things aims to give Christians and the churches the confidence to engage with assumptions that evolutionary theory and religious beliefs are untenable This is a valuable resource for anyone engaged in the study of theology providing the reader with the ability to consider both the theoretical and the practical questions raised by evolutionary discussions of ethics and morality      The Political Morality of Liberal Democracy Michael J. Theological Bioethics Lisa Sowle Cahill, 2005-11-16 The field of bioethics was deeply influenced by religious thinkers as it emerged in the 1960s and early 1970s Since that time however a seemingly neutral political liberalism has pervaded the public sphere resulting in a deep suspicion of those bringing religious values to bear on questions of bioethics and public policy As a theological ethicist and progressive Catholic Lisa Sowle Cahill does not want to cede the religious perspective to fundamentalists and the pro life movement nor does she want to submit to the gospel of a political liberalism that champions individual autonomy as holy writ In Theological Bioethics Cahill calls for progressive religious thinkers and believers to join in the effort to reclaim the best of their traditions through jointly engaging political forces at both community and national levels In Cahill's eyes just access to health care must be the number one priority for this type of participatory bioethics She describes a new understanding of theological bioethics that must go beyond decrying injustice beyond opposing social practices that commercialize human beings beyond painting a vision of a more egalitarian future Such a participatory bioethics she argues must also take account of and take part in a global social network of mobilization for change it must seek out those in solidarity those involved in a common calling to create a more just social political and economic system During the past two decades Cahill has made profound contributions to theological ethics and bioethics This is a magisterial and programmatic statement that will alter how the religiously inclined understand their role in the great bioethics debates of today and tomorrow that yearn for clear thinking and prophetic wisdom

Technē Gerald Hiestand, Todd A. Wilson, 2022-11-18 Christians have an increasingly complex and often conflicted relationship with technology As Genesis 1 succinctly and profoundly declares God created humanity in his image and as part of that vocation we are called to make something of the world Technology is one of the most important and powerful ways that human beings exercise this dominion But while technology can extend our humanity in powerful and exciting ways many of us feel that it can compromise or fracture our humanity at its core As a result questions quickly emerge What does it mean to be human How does our creation in the image of God affect the way we use design and understand technology Should our general posture toward technology be cautious or optimistic This collection of scholarly and pastoral essays drawn from the 2019 annual theology conference of the Center for Pastor Theologians offers substantive Christian reflection on a wide range of issues pertinent to a distinctly Christian vision of technology today and in the future

Christian in Public L. D. Hansen, 2008-02-01 Higher education has not escaped the imperative of transformation which has marked the post apartheid South African landscape The nature of the changes at universities however is open to critique Fundamental questions concerning the ideological moorings of knowledge and the politics of the curriculum have not yet been satisfactorily addressed During the apartheid era theology faculties played influential roles at traditional universities and were often characterised by unsettling exclusion of non Christian religions non Calvinist denominations and marginalised voices This volume of essays evidences a process at the University of the Free State's Faculty of Theology to reflect seriously about the need for transformation at the fundamental level that is of knowledge The challenge for theology at a public university is framed in terms of epistemological transformation A number of outstanding public intellectuals such as Jonathan Jansen Crain Soudien and Lis Lange have been invited to present papers to clarify the conceptual challenge and what this might entail for theology Well known theologians such as Conrad Wethmar Allan Boesak and Martin Prozesky reflect on the nature of theology and religion at universities amidst social exigencies Two international theologians Harold Attridge from the prestigious Yale Divinity School and Bram van de Beek from the Free University of Amsterdam share their experiences of institutions that exemplify excellence and ecumenical openness Theologians from the Departments of Practical Theology and Systematic Theology at the University of the Free State writing from the inside articulate the challenges they envision for theology in a post apartheid dispensation The essays represent a variety of perspectives but all attest to a commitment to re think the nature and task of theology at a public university accepting the challenge of knowledge and power of plurality and otherness and of restorative intellectual justice These timely essays make a unique contribution to the discourses on transformation and on theology at a public university
