Study Guide for Exam 1C

What makes a good democracy "participatory"? Approximately what percentage of Americans participate in some political activities? How does this compare with others?

Approximately 60% of Americans participate in some political activities. This is higher than most other democracies.

What are some reasons for this comparatively high participation? (Consider the political system itself, "civicness", effort to recruit for this?)

Reasons include: (1) political system is more open and responsive to citizens; (2) high level of "civicness" or "civicness" among Americans; (3) effort to recruit for this.

What are the major differences in participation? How do they relate to the ability to actually influence public opinion?

Participation differs by income, education, race, gender, age, and other factors. Higher income, education, and age are associated with higher participation. This is not necessarily the case for all groups.
