A. YOUR REGULATION DESIGN

The scope of your Program Review has been determined primarily by the need of business units, programs or departments to improve and enhance individual performance. The review is a tool to help you, your manager, and others, identify areas for improvement. It is not a tool for determining the level of achievement and a comparison with others in the organization. The review is based on performance goals, which, depending on your position, may be set by you, your manager, or your organization. This ensures the most relevant targets for your work. Productivity, quality, quantity, cost, customer service, and customer satisfaction are common goals. The review is not an official performance evaluation.
