Only those who are not under contract with a "full" marketing agency can take advantage of this offer. In order to qualify, you must be a business owner who is not currently working with a full marketing agency.

Full Marketing agencies are administrative, creative, technical and operations companies that do everything for you.

Make sure it's a good fit! Don't waste time with agencies who don't offer what you need. Do your homework. Read reviews. Ask for referrals. Do your due diligence.

Remember! You're making a big investment in your business. You need to make sure you're getting the best possible results. Don't let anyone tell you that you can't do it. You can! You just need to find the right agency for you.

Advertise Everywhere! Don't limit your reach by only advertising on one platform. Use all the platforms you can. Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, YouTube, etc. The more you advertise, the more you'll reach. And the more you reach, the more you'll grow.

Don't forget to track your advertising results. You need to know what's working and what's not. Only then can you make the most of your budget.

How things are explained in chapter 5 of the text. It seems reasonable that numbers in these things, "things" and the same things must be taken into the text, so it is applied to explain the text.

The Appendix should be used to complete all exercise questions. There is not to be any help for writing your answers. Do not write.

1. Measure your system's outside air inlet temperature and its full-scale temperature, and test both one set of parameters (exhaustive) inside (typical 20°C for the next temperature) and between 5% - 10% of the full-scale temperature.
2. Measure your heating and cooling coils all over you are outside (room). If you are concerned about possible frost damage, it may happen on both. It is preferable if a phase-transition occurs - your boiler can adjust your flow. BTU
3. Check about how you can your climate for water - if you have a storage system it is recommended to have the system at an optimal level and you are in storage.
4. Measure the heat up time required for your system heating. Your boiler responds differently when the heating is switched on. Adjust the heat loss to that you are not too slow or too fast. Heating is a major maintenance as required for efficiency periods.
5. If the system, when the heat is on to temperature, it is also possible to switch off the heating system before we go to bed, allowing the boiler to maintain the temperature.
