Review of the New York City Watershed Protection Program National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee to Review the New York City Watershed Protection Program, 2021-01-04 New York City's municipal water supply system provides about 1 billion gallons of drinking water a day to over 8.5 million people in New York City and about 1 million people living in nearby Westchester, Putnam, Ulster, and Orange counties. The combined water supply system includes 19 reservoirs and three controlled lakes with a total storage capacity of approximately 580 billion gallons. The city's Watershed Protection Program is intended to maintain and enhance the high quality of these surface water sources. Review of the New York City Watershed Protection Program assesses the efficacy and future of New York City's watershed management activities. The report identifies program areas that may require future change or action, including continued efforts to address turbidity and responding to changes in reservoir water quality as a result of climate change. Atlantic Rim Natural Gas Field Development Project, 2006

Psychotherapy patients use their therapists as sounding boards to help them answer two questions: Do I need to lose weight? And if I do need to lose weight, how should I go about it? Chapters provide therapists with the tools they need to help patients find personalized solutions to their weight loss concerns, to boost their self-image, and to deal with the judgment that is sometimes imposed by others, regardless of which weight management approach patients eventually embrace. Moody's Manual of Railroads and Corporation Securities, 1924 Treating Opioid

Bilingualism and cognitive control Judith F. Kroll, Ingrid Christoffels, Teresa Bajo, Research on bilingual language processing reveals an important role for control processes that enable bilinguals to negotiate the potential competition across their two languages The requirement for control that enables bilinguals to speak the intended language and to switch between languages has also been suggested to confer a set of cognitive consequences for executive function that extend beyond language to domain general cognitive skills Many recent studies have examined aspects of how cognitive control is manifest during bilingual language processing how individual differences in cognitive resources influence second language learning and performance and the range of cognitive tasks that appear to be influenced by bilingualism However not all studies demonstrate a bilingual advantage in all tasks that tap into cognitive control Indeed many questions are unanswered that are critical to our understanding of bilingual control What aspects of cognitive control are enhanced for proficient bilinguals How are individual differences in cognitive control related to language acquisition proficiency or professional translation skill How does the language environment affect concurrent processing How exactly does language control come about in tasks such as speech production switching between languages or translation When and how does inhibitory processing support language control The focus of this Research Topic is on executive control and bilingualism The goal is to have a broad scope that includes all of these issues We seek empirical contributions using different methodologies including behavioral computational and neuroscience approaches We also welcome theoretical contributions that provide detailed discussion of models or mechanisms that account for the relationship between bilingualism and cognitive control We aim to provide a platform for new contributions that represent a state of the art overview of approaches to cognitive control in bilingualism We hope that this Research Topic will enable the field to formulate more precise hypotheses and causal models on the relation between individual differences cognitive control and bilingual language processing
