five other authors The Haunted House Charles Dickens, 2014-10-23 My health required a temporary residence in the country and a friend of mine who knew that and who had happened to drive past the house had written to me to suggest it as a likely place I had got into the train at midnight and had fallen asleep and had woke up and had sat looking out of window at the brilliant Northern Lights in the sky and had fallen asleep again and had woke up again to find the night gone with the usual discontented conviction on me that I hadn't been to sleep at all upon which question in the first imbecility of that condition I am ashamed to believe that I would have done waver by battle with the man who sat opposite me That opposite man had had through the night as that opposite man always has several legs too many and all of them too long In addition to this unreasonable conduct which was only to be expected of him he had had a pencil and a pocket book and had been perpetually listening and taking notes It had appeared to me that these aggravating notes related to the jolts and bumps of the carriage and I should have resigned myself to his taking them under a general supposition that he was in the civil engineering way of life if he had not sat staring straight over my head whenever he listened He was a goggle eyed gentleman of a perplexed aspect and his demeanour became unbearable
