new approaches to learning and development as exemplified by the system of GULL Global University for Lifelong Learning. The GULL system harnesses the potential of people to bring about positive change together characterized by self reliance, financial independence and cascading learning and benefits to others. It is a self directed and self sustainable process of learning and growth. The case studies in this book provide evidence that over time economically very poor communities can achieve transformations that bring with them many benefits personally, professionally and for the community. This book manages to accomplish an almost impossible goal to be both deeply inspirational and highly practical all at the same time.

Professor Mary Brydon Miller USA: I was sold on this book from the foreword, the need to rethink how we think about and do education is emerging as a hot topic among academics.

Professor Lesley Wood South Africa: All development practitioners and students should study this book carefully as should aid bureaucrats and aid donors.

Dr Chad Perry Australia: In this book Ortrun Zuber Skeritt and Richard Teare invite us to re think, re evaluate and re create our views of learning.

Associate Professor Doris Santos Colombia: In this new book the authors present challenging and original models for encouraging community and social development work.

Drawing on a Lifelong Action Learning (LAL) approach, they challenge Western dominated approaches to learning, encouraging the development of local solutions for local needs.

Dr Pip Bruce Ferguson New Zealand: By bringing education to the people rather than people to education, they create the possibility for real personal, organizational and community learning on the ground in developing countries.

Dr Ron Passfield Australia: The genius of this book is its simplicity. It provides a sound approach to addressing the holes in our mainstream approaches to education, training, development and in living together in communities through providing a new understanding of lifelong action learning and how to achieve it through proactively cultivating and passing on local knowledge.

Dr Frank Thompson Africa: I believe this book has the potential to transform the century old teaching and learning paradigm that is failing many countries to one that is futures oriented and transformational in nature. This is a book that all educators need to read and to consider within their own learning context.

Dr Margaret Fletcher Australia: This book will be useful to international community developers, educators and researchers especially if they are looking for alternative ways of successfully improving living conditions for disadvantaged and subsistence communities.

This type of education could be considered non traditional as it goes beyond the typical educational path and develops learners that are self initiated and focused on personal development in the form of gaining some sort of education. An Alternative Framework for Community Learning Centers in the 21st Century Michael F. Reber, 2003 Public Community Learning Centers (CLCs) at least in the context of the United States are social structures that have been established to address particular community needs In the beginning they were instituted as extensions of state departments human services in order to assist communities with programs such as adult literacy and high school graduation certification Today they have taken on a broader role as a result of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Title X Part I that gives rural and inner city public schools nearly 2 billion over five years 1999 2004 to develop CLCs for programs such as mentoring in basic skills or helping high school students prepare for college Despite these noble efforts public CLCs are still not integral parts of community sustainability One could argue that a major cause for this is that they are established mainly for political purposes However the problem is much deeper Public CLCs today are unable to serve as sustainable social structures because they lack several foundational principles that assist communities with creating and maintaining sustainability In short they do not adequately reflect the values beliefs and knowledge of the current community education movement Thus an alternative framework within which communities can develop CLCs is needed Using a systemic design approach toward the design of a community learning system an alternative framework for CLCs is designed that enables communities to create the conditions whereby they can become self reliant self governing and sustainable
