

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he sees the bravery and sacrifice of the men of the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to change his mind and becomes a more progressive leader.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The movie shows that the 54th Massachusetts is a microcosm of the African-American community in the mid-19th century. The soldiers come from different regions of the country, have different backgrounds, and speak different dialects. This shows that the experience of slavery and the struggle for freedom was shared by all African-Americans, regardless of their social status or education.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers of the 54th are treated with contempt and discrimination. They are given the worst assignments and are often the target of racial slurs and threats. However, as they see the bravery and sacrifice of the 54th, their attitudes begin to change. Some of the white soldiers become friends with the black soldiers, and others begin to respect their abilities and courage.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were given the worst assignments, paid less than white soldiers, and were often the target of discrimination and violence. However, the movie shows that some white soldiers began to change their attitudes and treat the black soldiers more fairly as they saw their bravery and sacrifice.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse pay for himself?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse pay for himself is significant because it shows that he is willing to sacrifice for the cause of freedom. He is a white man who is fighting for the rights of African-Americans, and he is willing to give up his own money to do so.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings or insights does your tell you?

The movie shows that the incident did not end as I expected. I thought that the white soldiers would be angry and that the black soldiers would be punished. However, the movie shows that the white soldiers began to change their attitudes and that the black soldiers were respected and treated fairly. This gives me a sense of hope and optimism about the future of the American people.
