Jesus And Philosophy:

Jesus the Great Philosopher Jonathan T. Pennington, 2020-10-20 Many of us tend to live as though Jesus represents the spiritual part of our lives We don't clearly see how he relates to the rest of our experiences desires and habits How can Jesus the Bible and Christianity become more than a compartmentalized part of our lives Highly regarded New Testament scholar and popular teacher Jonathan Pennington argues that we need to recover the lost biblical image of Jesus as the one true philosopher who teaches us how to experience the fullness of our humanity in the kingdom of God Jesus teaches us what is good right and beautiful and offers answers to life's big questions what it means to be human how to be happy how to order our emotions and how we should conduct our relationships This book brings Jesus and Christianity into dialogue with the ancient philosophers who asked the same big questions about finding meaningful happiness It helps us rediscover biblical Christianity as a whole life philosophy one that addresses our greatest human questions and helps us live meaningful and flourishing lives

Jesus and Philosophy Don Cupitt, 2013-01-02 Around twenty years or so after his death the fiery and interesting Jewish teacher Jesus of Nazareth was made into the personification of his own teaching and given an exalted cosmic status Within a few decades he had been so completely buried by supernatural beliefs about himself that in all the years since it has been very difficult to make out his own voice and quite impossible to take him seriously as a thinker Jesus and Philosophy asks on the basis of recent reconstructions of his teaching what was Jesus moral philosophy What was his world view And is he a big enough figure in the history of ethics to survive the end of the classic ecclesiastical beliefs about him The author Don Cupitt argues that Jesus will be bigger after Christianity which blocked the realization of just how revolutionary a figure he was

Jesus as Philosopher Runar M. Thorsteinsson, 2018-05-24 Jesus as Philosopher The Philosophical Sage in the Synoptic Gospels examines the possible ways in which the authors of the Synoptic Gospels Mark Matthew and Luke were inspired by contemporary philosophical traditions about the ideal philosophical sage in their description of their ideal human being Jesus Christ Runar M Thorsteinsson considers the following questions How does the author in question speak of Jesus in relation to contemporary philosophy Do we see Jesus take on a certain philosophical role in the Gospels either by his statements and reasoning or his way of life In what way are Jesus words and actions analogous to that of leading philosophical figures in Graeco Roman antiquity according to these texts Conversely in what way do his words and actions differ from theirs While Thorsteinsson discusses a number of Graeco Roman sources the emphasis is on the question of how these parallel texts help us better to understand the Gospel authors perception and presentation of the character of Jesus While the fields of theology and ethics are often intertwined in these texts including the philosophical texts Thorsteinsson's main focus is the ethical aspect He argues that the Gospel authors drew in some ways on classical virtue ethics The study concludes that the Gospel authors inherited stories and sayings of Jesus that they wanted to improve upon and recount as truthfully as possible and they did so in part by making use of philosophical traditions about the ideal sage especially that of Stoicism and Cynicism The Severity of God Paul K. Moser, 2013-02-14 This book explores the role of divine severity in the character and wisdom of God and the flux and difficulties of human life in relation to divine salvation. Much has been written on problems of evil but the matter of divine severity has received relatively little attention. Paul K. Moser discusses the function of philosophy, evidence and miracles in approaching God. He argues that if God's aim is to extend without coercion His lasting life to humans, then commitment to that goal could manifest itself in making human life severe for the sake of encouraging humans to enter into that cooperative good life. In this scenario, divine agap is conferred as a free gift but the human reception of it includes stress and struggle in the face of conflicting powers and priorities. Moser's work will be of great interest to students of the philosophy of religion and theology. Jesus and Philosophy Paul K. Moser, 2009 The Philosophy of Christian Being Walter E. Brandenburg, 1917 The Teaching of Jesus and its Enduring Significance Franz Brentano, 2021-05-21 Here for the first time in English is Franz Brentano's The Teaching of Jesus, a compendium of texts Brentano assembled for publication shortly before his death that constitute a frank public settling of accounts with the Christian religion. Originally conceived by Brentano as a volume that might help others similarly led to doubt the doctrines of Christianity, the book is remarkably free of bitterness or spitefulness. On the contrary, what makes the book of singular importance, especially now, is its careful attempt at taking stock of the positive and negative influence Christianity has had in history. This text appeals to those researchers and scholars interested in the work of Franz Brentano and his work on the philosophy of religion in this case, Christianity. John and Philosophy Troels Engberg-Pedersen, 2017-02-03 John and Philosophy: A New Reading of the Fourth Gospel offers a Stoic reading of the Fourth Gospel, especially its cosmology, epistemology and ethics. It works through the gospel in narrative sequence, providing a philosophical narrative reading. In each section of the gospel, Troels Engberg-Pedersen raises, discusses, philosophical questions. He compares John with Paul in philosophy and Mark in narrative to offer a new reading of the transmitted text of the Fourth Gospel. Of these two profiles, the narrative one is strongly influenced by the literary critical paradigm. Moreover, by attending carefully to a number of narratological features, one may come to see that the transmitted text in fact hangs together much more coherently than scholarship has been willing to see. The other profile is specifically philosophical. Scholarship has been well aware that the Fourth Gospel has what one might call a philosophical dimension. Engberg-Pedersen shows that throughout the Gospel, contemporary Stoicism works better to illuminate the text. This pertains to the basic cosmology and cosmogony that is reflected in the text, to the epistemology that underlies a central theme in it regarding different types of belief in Jesus, to the ethics that is introduced fairly late in the text when Jesus describes how the disciples should live once he has himself gone away from them and more. "The Time Is Fulfilled" Lynne Moss Bahr, 2018-12-27 In this study, Lynne Moss Bahr explores the concept of temporality as central to Jesus's proclamation of the Kingdom of God. Using insights from continental philosophy on the messianic which expose the false claim that time progresses in a linear continuum Bahr presents these philosophical positions in critical dialogue with the sayings of Jesus regarding time and time's fulfillment. She shows how the Kingdom represents the possibilities of a disruption in time, one that reveals the intrinsic relation between God and humanity. In illustrating how Jesus's sayings regarding time are thus expressions of his messianic identity as of the world and not of the world, Bahr argues that the meaning of Jesus's identity as Messiah is embedded in the disjuncture of time in the impossibility of now from which the Kingdom comes. Bahr's use of critical theory in this study expands the concept of God's Kingdom beyond the traditional confines of the discipline.

The Philosophy of Jesus Ph. D. Garth V. Greene, 2009-06

WHAT IS PHILOSOPHY Philosophy over the years has been considered by the average college student as a part of education reserved for someone doing a doctoral dissertation and therefore of little interest to them. Whether this has been a reasonable position to take seems on the surface to be a good question to pursue. For in many high schools philosophy is not taught and so it remains a dark area of the educational field which only the brave dare to tread. Nevertheless, my view of philosophy when summed up is that it is merely a well thought out position coined in several words and used to state what one believes in, is prepared to live by, does live by, will die for, and can defend successfully at any intellectual level. The experts, however, offer the following:

Norman L. Geisler and Paul D. Feinberg¹ in their text introduction to philosophy says: "The logical place to begin is with a definition of this discipline. However, even the coming up with a definition proves to be a complex philosophical question. Some experts regard philosophy as the Uno Numero of all the sciences while others still don't accept it as a science. Some contend that philosophy reveals information upon inquiry of those things that comprise the ultimate things of the world while others don't even regard it as such a serious discipline of inquiry. Others see it as an activity of rationality with its central theme being to critically evaluate evidence of a phenomena, but to this argument some hold that reason is not essential or indeed there is no pursuit to an all convincing theme or argument in philosophy."

Presenting the most important insights of well over a hundred seminal philosophers in both the Eastern and Western traditions, the Wadsworth Philosophers Series contains volumes written by scholars noted for their excellence in teaching and for their well versed comprehension of each featured philosopher's major works and contributions.
