

Although religious freedom was guaranteed by the Constitution in 1788, non-Christians and non-Protestants continued to be victims of political and constitutional discrimination for more than a century. Many mainstream Protestants distrusted Jews, and they worked to maintain preferential treatment for Christians in common law, state constitutions, and federal practices, even attempting through interpretation and amendment to alter the meaning of the Constitution.

Jews, Turks, and Infidels

by Morton Borden offers the first full-length study of the Jewish struggle for religious equality in America.
